MAY'S

Men's Furnishings, Hats, Shoes

The question is often asked: "How is it your goods look so different from others?" That is just it! Our aim is to give our patrons the newest in fashion's creations. We do not wait to see what others are doing. We believe in setting the pace : : :

We claim originality of a great many style creations, which have proven such a success they have become fashions of the world.

Another aim of ours which is just as important is our guarantee. All goods must be right or we cheerfully reimburse our patrons : :

PREFACE

THE traditions and customs of a College are the most precious possessions of its members. To guard and keep them is the duty of all. When calculus and analytics, when physics and psychology have been long forgotten, the stories of old college scrapes, the faces of old classmates and the record of athletic contests will stir the heart and bring to life those genuine, care-free days we spent in the halls of our Alma Mater. It is the purpose of this MELANGE to preserve in its modest way the contemporary doings of our campus life, and if it has caught in its pages the changing scenes and cherished memories of college days which are so dear to every undergraduate; if it helps to maintain and build up that subtle something which we call "Lafayette Spirit," the Board of Editors will feel satisfied.

Some changes have been made in the contents, as well as in the form of the book, but the usual selection of "roasts" has been retained, rather to add spice to the commonplace than to injure the feelings of any one.

With a desire that it may please many and offend few, that it will serve as a connecting link between the past and the present, and bind even closer those precious ties of college association, the Board of Editors presents to the alumni and undergraduates this,—its humble effort.

Assistant in Biology.
A.B., Lafayette, 1904.

Frederick Franklin Farquhar, A.B.,
Assistant in English.
A.B., Lafayette, 1905.

Joshua Lewis Miner, A.B.,
Assistant in Cement Laboratory.
A.B., Lafayette, 1903; Zeta Psi.

In Memoriam

MR. SAMUEL L. FISLER, A.M.

On Tuesday, January 14th, Mr. Fisler, though not feeling very well, was up and about doing business much as usual, both on the campus and down town. In the evening he went to bed at an early hour and in the sleep of that night passed peacefully away. His death was a sad shock to his family and to all, though not wholly unexpected as he was known to be suffering from a weak heart. He was seventy-one years of age.

Mr. Fisler graduated with honor at Lafayette in 1861, and for four years after that was engaged in the Susquehanna Collegiate Institute, Towanda, Pa., where he is still remembered as a vigorous and inspiring teacher. He came back to Easton, however, and in 1869 again connected himself with the college of his choice, this time as Superintendent of Grounds and of the Construction of Buildings. Those were the days of Lafayette's rising fortunes under the administration of Dr. Cattell. It has been under the hand and constant supervision of Mr. Fisler that the college grounds have come to their present beauty.

In 1873, on the death of Professor James H. Coffin, Mr. Fisler succeeded him as Treasurer of the college. He was also Secretary of the Board of Trustees from 1874 to October, 1907, when his failing health compelled him to resign. From 1891 to 1894 he was Postmaster of Easton.

Mr. Fisler was a man universally esteemed, a man of personal force and good influence in circles of culture as well as of business. He knew a good cause when he saw it, and no good cause ever appealed to him in vain for help or support. He was prominent in the church, in the Sunday-school, and in the Y. M. C. A., an eloquent and forceful speaker, and always a just and good man. Every member of the college has lost in him a true friend, and the college has lost an able helper.

LAFAYETTE

AS Seniors at Lafayette, we can begin to catch something of the meaning of the phrase, "flight of years." It seems but yesterday when we came on the hill for the first time, one hundred and forty strong. Now our numbers have shrunk to less than four-score and ten.

During our stay many happenings have occurred full of significance to all Lafayette men. "Dear Old Bloomy" has gone home, "Dad" has retired from active work, the seventy-fifth mile-stone of the college has been past, and half a million dollars has been added to the endowment. Moreover, the Athletic field has been put into a shape little dreamed of five years ago. Fraternity houses are fast rising on our campus and adding still more charm to our far-famed "College Beautiful."

In Athletics we have seen four of the Big Six humbled in defeat by our representatives on the diamond and gridiron, while our friends up the Lehigh have four times been forced to acknowledge on the gridiron Lafayette's supremacy.

Our relay team has also carried off high honors. How many of these good records have been due to 1908, we modestly decline to say.

There have been some of the outward signs of advancement in the college itself. As to the class individually, we all of us feel we have passed from boyhood to manhood. Hardly one of us but feel the refining and disciplinary influences of college training. Internally our minds have been truly changed. From knowing everything, we now feel that our whole knowledge is but a drop in the ocean of universal learning. No doubt many of us have regrets for lost opportunities, but perhaps they are equaled by those who wished they had studied less and learned more.

Not like many classes our numbers possess not one Benedict. But wait, gentle reader, Cupid has some surprises up his sleeve, and Commencement will likely make him show his precious trumps.

In conclusion, we must acknowledge that our lines have fallen to us in pleasant places and we leave our Alma Mater with a goodly heritage. As college graduates in the world let us remember that to whom much has been given from them shall much be required.

The JUNIORS

THERE is a constant charm in college life,
A source of happiness that never ends,
A symphony of tones, both rich and full,
That sweep the heart-strings and produce new strains
Of peace and restfulness for duties done,
For tasks accomplished, honors won through toil;
Of mirth and joy for many moments spent
With friends, ah! those warm-hearted, loyal friends,
The most loved heritage that college gives;
Of high regard for those who guided us,
So patiently along the path to knowledge.—
And then, anon, deep chords resound and swell,
When test is made of loyalty and faith
To Alma Mater, in games and contests.
Then flames the red blood, hearts throb and quicken,
And lips voice the deep hidden love we feel
For Alma Mater.
From the East, the infancy of the world,
A ship sails forth to cross an unknown sea,
To come to anchor in a distant land.
Days of calm pass, days of soft cooling winds,
When the waves gleam and life is blithe and gay;
But tempests rise and skies are dark and drear;
Winds rage and sombre clouds shut out the sun.—
So, through many days, till at length is reached
The harbor on the far western shore.
Now, the voyage o'er, those within depart
Into this strange land, to try new ventures;
Oft their thoughts return to that bright voyage,
And their smiles and sighs are mingled as they muse.

And so, kind Reader, this our Junior year
Is the third portion of our pilgrimage.
At first we labored, storm beset, our crew
Untried, our tackle new and rigging fresh;

But in our second year, though brisk the wind,
Still on an even keel we flew, and now
The skies are clear, no storms delay our course,
And all our days are days of pleasantness.
We spend much time in thought and meditation,
And unto us are shown deep mysteries;
We climb aloft and to our eyes unveil
Great wonders in the vast, unfathomable
Sea of knowledge.

And now a word as to our pastimes, how
We gathered on the fair autumnal days
And cheered the chosen few who fought and strove
For victory on the gridiron. Our team
This year brought added laurels to the college.
On diamond, track and Glee Clubs our classmates
May be found; and on the "Sock and Buskin,"
In Literary Hall and other Clubs
Our members do their share. There are a few,
A gifted few, who scribble wondrous things
For "Lafayette" and "Touchstone."

What mem'ries we recall of Junior Week!
The "Browse," the play, the "Hop"—of "Her!" (Our time
Is all too short to speak of this.)
What great delight we took in drawing "Pidy"
Figures, of analyzing waves and sounds,
Of listening to the jokes that oft were "cracked!"
And now, oh Reader, we beg you to observe
This our publication. It is a record
Of things done here in college and we are
Justly proud of this our work.

The year draws to a close. Our pilgrimage
Is almost o'er. When we return as Seniors,
The breath of that strange land, the great wide world
Which we must enter, will be upon our brows.
And as some well-loved melody comes to one
O'er and o'er, so the mem'ry of these glad and
Happy days will constantly with us abide
Through all our years. HISTORIAN.

Sophomore Class History

WHAT a strange feeling it was to be Sophomores! With what pleasure we had thought of such a blissful time! To wear hats, to smoke anything, even to a big, black cigar, to walk across the grass with that peculiar sense of ownership, to realize that, in our own minds at least, we were lords of all creation—these were the things we had looked forward to and had dreamed of in sweet dreams. Was there ever anything more glorious than the scrap on the Campus the night before College opened this year? Well, I guess not! The idea of overcoming the Freshmen! Our blood just tingled with the certainty of victory. And this victory was not slow in coming. But let us not humiliate the Freshmen by telling how they were beaten. Poor things, they have suffered enough.

However, we can not help but remark that we have done something very few classes have done, that is, win all the scraps and games during Freshmen and Sophomore years! We are proud of our record and make no effort to conceal our pride!

One thing that stands out in the minds of the class besides the "scraps" is the class banquet. Every one thoroughly enjoyed himself. And the amusement furnished by several members of '11 was only an added delight.

Is it necessary to mention all the 1910 men who have distinguished themselves in some college activity? Certainly not, for it is impossible to read this "Melange" without realizing that 1910 contains a number of rattling good fellows.

In conclusion, we all have heard the expression, "You can't keep a good fellow down!" Well, this saying applies excellently to 1910. Each and every one of us is glad that he is a member of a class than which few better have ever entered Lafayette. Now, fellows, three cheers for 1910! HISTORIAN.

YE FROSH

ON the 13th of September, 1907, amidst the steam and smoke, the hiss of the air brakes, and the cries of cabbies, the bouncer class of 1911 rolled into the station. There were men from Athens, and men from Gath, (Rush)-uns and (Pole)s, Huns, (Sem)ites and Gauls, as goodly a gathering of men as ever graced a college campus or took the long road for the Hall of Fame.

From the very first we were feared. The President awaited anxiously the policy of our administration. The Seniors feared lest we should not furnish avoir-dupois to kick the pigskin. The Juniors feared lest we should not do our duty by the "Sophs" and the "Sophs" feared lest we should overdo it. The fears of the first three were soon allayed. The President saw that the ship of State was secure for the next four notches at least, especially as there was a good supply of "sky pilots" aboard. The Seniors found several who had taken the Nazarite vow, and were lusty exponents of Melan's. The Juniors saw from our first encounter with the "Sophs" on the night of September 11th, that we wouldn't need any nursing, and that we had just enough Irish mixture to enjoy such occasions.

Every great administrative body is great simply because it has done great things. That is why we are a great body. We yielded the "big stick" with varying success to be sure, in the formative period of our policies, in the days of the cane rush, and the banner scrap, but our rule was finally established, when on the east steps of a Capital Building (Pardee) in the face of an angry mob of Philistines we demonstrated to the gaping public that our government could "long endure."

"OUR Fraternity is neither a religious body nor a political organization. It is neither a scheme for the relief of the poor, nor a substitute for life insurance It advocates no special creed, neither does it seek to influence legislation It does not deliver to its members homilies dealing with the demoralizing effects of rags, neither does it ask them to support the families of their deceased brothers. It is not even a social organization in the accepted sense of that term. It is the most simple, the most unobtrusive, the least ostentatious, and, when its purpose is properly carried out, the most beneficial order within my knowledge."

Aula Washingtonia

Founded 1832

IN the rooms of Washington Literary Society may be seen a photograph of the old Germantown Manual Labor Academy, the birthplace of the Society. When Rev. George Junkin, D.D., became the President of Lafayette College, several members of the old Philomathean Society accompanied him from Germantown to Easton and became the nucleus of the new Society.

Washington Literary Society for forty-seven years had its rooms in old South College. In 1881 the Society took up its present location in the West Wing of Pardee Hall. The arrangement and finishing of the rooms was in charge of Prof. David B. King, and six thousand dollars were expended on the furnishings.

In 1897, when Pardee Hall was burned, the rooms were completely destroyed. Upon the restoration of Pardee Hall, the former location was resumed and the rooms furnished according to the original scheme.

The auditorium is finished in maroon and the windows are draped with heavy maroon curtains. Luxurious Smyrna rugs cover the floor. The chandeliers are of heavy oxidized silver, and the woodwork is the finest quartered oak. Over the President's chair is a beautiful canopy of silk curtains. The arrangement of seats is in the English Parliamentary style.

The Library is one of the most beautiful rooms in connection with the college. It is furnished in the same lavish style as the auditorium, dark green being the prevailing color. The Library is well stocked with all the standard works of poetry and prose, including an excellent collection of modern fiction.

Washington Hall is proud of its history and of the prominent men who have gone out from it, and excellent work is being done by its members in the active society.

The Franklin Literary Society

THE FRANKLIN LITERARY SOCIETY was organized November 26, 1831. When Rev. George Junkin, D.D., assumed the presidency of Lafayette in 1832, he brought with him from the Germantown Manual Labor Academy twelve men who were charter members of the Society at that institution. With these as a nucleus it has developed and grown into one of the most powerful and influential organizations of college life.

At present it is located in Pardee Hall and occupies three spacious rooms, beautifully furnished and equipped in every detail. Its library numbers several thousand volumes and affords excellent opportunities in every line of literary work.

The Hall proper is modeled after the United States Senate Chamber, and from its rostrum are heard the maiden efforts of future lawyers, statesmen and ministers.

The object of this Society is to provide a training in public speaking. With this view its members seek first, the ability to think quickly on their feet, and, second, the power to express their thoughts in simple, clear and appropriate language.

"Reading maketh a full man; talking a ready man." Preparation for, and participation in debates, compel one to measure up to the standard.

It nurtures mental activity. One cannot play a creditable part in literary exercises without extensive reading and careful thinking, both of which are essential to the make-up of a man of affairs.

The Franklin Literary Society offers these opportunities to its members. That its work has not been in vain is attested by the long list of statesmen, lawyers, ministers and successful business men—many of national and international reputation—who first began to shape their careers within its walls.

Constitution of the Lafayette College Athletic Association

ARTICLE I.

This organization shall be called the Lafayette College Athletic Association.

ARTICLE II.

The Lafayette College Athletic Association shall be composed of an alumni association and an undergraduate association.

ARTICLE III.

The Alumni Athletic Association shall be composed of all persons eligible to membership in the general alumni association of the college, who shall pay a membership fee of five dollars a year, said fee to become due upon joining the association and upon the first day of January in each succeeding year. Members of said association shall elect an Alumni Athletic Committee as provided hereafter and shall be entitled to receive season tickets to all games given under the direction of the undergraduate body. Season tickets shall not be issued to members who have not paid their fee as provided, and unless paid by the third Tuesday in January said member shall receive no ballot for the election of the Athletic Committee, and if not paid by the first of April their names shall be dropped from the list of members and from any office in the association to which they may have been elected.

ARTICLE IV.

The undergraduate association shall be composed of all undergraduate students at Lafayette College who shall have paid a fee of $5.00 a year. They shall receive season tickets to all games given under the direction of the association and shall nominate members of the Alumni

Athletic Committee and elect managers of the various associations as hereinafter provided. A special section of the stands in the athletic field shall be reserved for them at all games.

Members who default in the payment of their dues when demanded, shall lose their membership, and shall not be reinstated until after the payment of all back dues. The dues shall be collected at the beginning of each term hereafter, under the direction of the treasurer of the Athletic Committee, who shall provide each manager with a correct list of the members of the association in good standing, and shall furnish season tickets for said members, and shall have charge of all moneys collected as dues.

ARTICLE V.

The officers of the Lafayette College Athletic Association shall be an Alumni Athletic Committee and a manager, assistant manager and captain of the football, baseball and track athletic teams, respectively.

ARTICLE VI.

SECTION 1. The Alumni Athletic Committee shall be composed of twelve alumni, four of whom are to be elected every year by the Alumni Athletic Association in the following manner: The undergraduate association shall, at their annual December meeting, nominate from the members of the alumni association as many men as there are vacancies in the Athletic Committee. At the same time the Secretary of the Athletic Committee shall send to each member of the alumni association in good standing a nomination paper, headed with the names of the Athletic Committee, with a star by the names of those members of the committee whose terms are about to expire, upon which said member shall write the name of any one person whom he may desire to nominate for membership in the Athletic Committee. The names of those nominated by the undergraduate association, together with the names of any members of the alumni association who shall have been nominated by ten such nomination papers, shall be printed upon ballots in alphabetical order with a star by the names of all renominated, and shall be sent on the date of the midwinter meeting of the undergraduate association to all members in good standing of the Alumni Athletic Association, who shall then return to the secretary of the Alumni Athletic Committee said ballots with a cross opposite as many names as there are vacancies to be filled. These ballots shall be counted upon the date of the spring meeting of the undergraduate association by a committee composed of the chairman, the secretary and the treasurer, and the graduate manager of the Athletic Committee, and those names having a plurality of votes shall be declared elected, unless there shall be less than 100 votes cast, in which case the ticket nominated by the undergraduate association shall be declared elected without reference to the votes.

SEC. 2. Five members of the Alumni Athletic Committee shall be residents of Easton, and shall constitute a Business Committee empowered to act for the whole committee in all matters upon which they can act unanimously. In case there are not nominations enough of Easton alumni at any election to keep this number complete, the Business Committee is empowered to add sufficient names to the list of nominees to enable this provision to be complied with and in case not enough Easton alumni are elected at any election to fill the vacancies in the Business Committee, the Canvassing Committee shall declare elected the necessary number of Easton alumni in place of those elected by the ballot, with the lowest vote. The members of the present Athletic Committee shall, upon the adoption of this constitution, become the Alumni Athletic Committee and shall serve out the terms to which they were elected. The first nomination, according to this constitution, shall be made in December, 1906.

ARTICLE VII.

SEC. 1. The Athletic Committee shall elect one of their number to serve as chairman, one to serve as secretary and treasurer, and one to serve as graduate manager.

SEC. 2. The chairman of the Athletic Committee shall preside at all meetings of the committee and shall call such meetings from time to time as necessity shall arise.

SEC. 3. The secretary and treasurer shall keep minutes of the transactions of the committee. He shall attend to all official correspondence and shall send out nomination papers and ballots to members of the alumni association as provided in Article VI. He shall collect the fees due by all members and give receipts for same. All receipts of the association from games, subscriptions or any other source shall be placed in his charge, and paid out only upon receipt of a warrant signed or endorsed by the graduate manager, which warrant shall be binding upon him. He shall keep accurate accounts under the direction of the committee of all such receipts and expenditures and shall publish yearly a report of the financial condition of the association. He shall receive a salary to be fixed by the Athletic Committee.

SEC. 4. The graduate manager shall act as an advisory manager in all forms of athletics under the control of the committee. All schedules of games and questions of athletic policy shall be submitted to him, and he shall have power to alter or approve such schedules and decide such questions, after consultation with the Business Committee, or the Athletic Committee when possible. All warrants for the expenditure of money by the undergraduate manager shall be submitted to him for endorsement, and the association shall be bound by all warrants endorsed or signed by him. He shall procure receipts for all moneys expended, so far as possible, and turn them over to the treasurer for record. He shall transact all business not falling under the control of any undergraduate manager.

SEC. 5. The Athletic Committee shall have power to annul the election of any manager, assistant manager or captain, or to remove from office such officers after a fair trial.

SEC. 6. The Athletic Committee shall have control of all agreements made with other institutions, and said agreements shall be binding upon the association.

ARTICLE VIII.

SEC. 1. The manager and assistant manager of the football team shall be elected at a meeting of the undergraduate association to be held upon the first Tuesday in December, the manager and assistant manager of the baseball team shall be elected at a meeting upon the second Tuesday in May, and the manager and assistant manager of the track team shall be elected upon the third Tuesday of January of each year.

SEC. 2. The captain of the football team shall be elected at the close of the football season by those persons who shall have earned the right to wear the "L's" during the season. The captain of the baseball team shall be elected at the close of the baseball season by those persons who shall have earned the right to wear the "L's" during the season, and the captain of the track team shall be elected at the close of the track season by those persons who shall have earned the right to wear the "L's" during the collge year.

SEC. 3. A majority vote of those present and entitled to vote shall be required to elect any officer of the undergraduate association.

ARTICLE IX.

The football manager shall preside at all meetings of the undergraduate association held during the first term of the college year, the track team manager at all meetings during the second term, and baseball manager at all meetings held during the third term. They shall carry on all correspondence and transact all business in connection with their respective teams, and take charge of all property purchased for said teams by themselves or previous manager. They shall draw warrants upon the treasurer for all money needed for the care of the teams, but such warrants shall not be binding upon the treasurer unless endorsed by the graduate manager. They shall keep such accounts as the treasurer shall direct. The term of the football manager shall expire upon the election of his successor, and that of the baseball and track managers at the end of the college year.

ARTICLE X.

It shall be the duty of the assistant manager to perform the duties of manager in the absence or disability of that officer, and to aid him as he may direct.

ARTICLE XI.

It shall be the duty of each captain to choose his team. He shall have absolute control in the management of the team on the field.

ARTICLE XII.

Every manager shall be chosen from the Junior class, and every assistant manager from the Sophomore class. No schedule student shall be eligible to the office of manager of any team.

ARTICLE XIII.

The regular meetings of the undergraduate association hereinbefore provided for shall be announced upon the bulletin boards of all the halls at least forty-eight hours before the hour of meeting, by the manager entitled to preside over them. Special meetings may be called at any time by any manager, with the consent of the Alumni Athletic Committee, or at the request of thirty members of the association, forty-eight hours' notice having been given upon all the bulletin boards.

ARTICLE XIV.

It shall require a majority vote of all the members of the undergraduate association to alter or amend in any way this constitution, and no proposal to alter or amend shall be acted on at the same meeting at which it shall be presented, unless at the written request of the Athletic Committee. The Alumni Association shall not be abolished nor any of its powers taken from it by amendment to this constitution except by its own consent.

ARTICLE XV.

All questions of interpretation of this constitution shall be referred to the Alumni Athletic Committee, whose decision shall be final.

Eligibility Rules

The following qualifications will be required of every member of any Athletic Team representing Lafayette College:

1. He must be a regular graduate or undergraduate student in actual residence, or if a special student, he must attend at least fifteen recitations a week, and have been a student at Lafayette for two terms.

2. He shall have a written permission from his parents or guardian to play and to accompany the team upon its trips.

3. He shall not have received any remuneration for services in any branch of athletics as player or coach; but he shall not be disqualified because of his receipt from the college or any purely amateur association of which he was at the time a member of the amount by which his ordinary expenses for the time being were necessarily increased by reason of his participation in athletics.

4. He shall not have played upon any summer baseball nine or other collegiate or non-collegiate athletic organization, from which he shall have received his living or other expenses, except that he may have received from a purely amateur organization, of which he is a member, the amount of his traveling and hotel expenses during his absence from the place of his residence for a specified contest or series of contests.

5. He shall not have previously played for four years in the aggregate upon any athletic team at Lafayette, or any other college or university or both. But only those years are to be counted which are an equivalent of the college years at Lafayette.

6. If admitted to Lafayette from another college upon college comity he must have been a student at Lafayette for at least one year unless upon examination he is admitted to full standing as a candidate for a degree, when he becomes at once eligible, except against a college or university according to whose rules he would be ineligible.

7. If dropped from his class on account of failure in college work, he must have completed one term since his return to college.

Football Resumé

THE Lafayette College football season, although not as successful as some that have gone before, was nevertheless a credit to the college. At the beginning of the season the outlook was rather blue. In the first place, MacAvoy, who had been chosen captain, did not return to college, and it was necessary for a new choice. Ellicott was selected and the selection proved to be a wise one, for no more competent leader ever donned a maroon and white uniform. The managership was also vacant, Rice having left college, and Buckley was elected, who filled the position with great satisfaction.

When Captain Ellicott issued his first call for candidates, the old men who appeared were: Rogers, Flad, Wylie, Aycrigg, Chalmers, Logan, Lee, McCaa, Blaicher, and Kirkpatrick, and there proved to be very good material in the incoming class. For quarter-back, Edwards developed into excellent material.

During the entire season Lafayette met defeat but twice, at Pennsylvania by a score of 15 to 0, and at Annapolis by 17 to 0. At Annapolis the team had not recovered from a bad slump into which it had suddenly fallen, and playing Pennsylvania soon after in a downpour of rain and on a muddy field, defeat was inevitable. The Syracuse team, which had defeated the Maroon and White the previous season, was played to a tie in a 4–4 contest. The annual Lehigh game was played at Bethlehem and was won by a score of 22 to 5. All the other games proved very easy to the Lafayette warriors and were won by large scores.

During the season Lafayette scored 198 points to her opponents' 50, which is an excellent record and one the college can well be proud of.

Resumé of the 1907 Season

DURING the season of 1907 Lafayette was represented by one of the strongest teams that ever wore the Maroon and White. On the southern trip we carried off the honors in seven out of nine contests. Of the remaining twenty games of the season, Lafayette was victorious in fourteen. The most exciting game of the season was played at Princeton, the deciding runs being made in the fourteenth inning. We were considerate this year and divided the honors equally with our old rivals from up the river.

The success of the season was due to the team as a unit, and the work of Schneider.

Track Season of 1907

THE track team in the 1907 season did not have a very large opportunity to show its ability as there were but two meets. Of these we won one by an overwhelming majority and lost the other by only a few points. As to the University of Pennsylvania Relay Meet, the less said the better, but it was unfortunate that the Lafayette Relay Team was not given a chance to show what it could do.

In Memoriam

STEPHEN KIRK GILLAM

ON March 19th at his home in Langhorne, Pa., Stephen Kirk Gillam died suddenly from cerebral hemorrhage. Kirk prepared at George School and entered Lafayette with 1909. At the end of Freshman year he went to the University of Pennsylvania, where he was considered one of the two brightest men in the University and was offered a fellowship upon graduation.

While here Gillam made a reputation for brilliant scholarship. With almost no effort he easily won first place in every department he entered, excelling in Latin, Greek and especially mathematics. Of a quiet nature, but always generous and ready to aid any who applied to him for assistance in their studies, Kirk made many friends in his short stay with us. It is with profound sorrow we learn that a career of so much promise and brilliance could not continue.

The Junior Class

OTIS TIFFANY BARNES, Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia is a big place and produces some big men, among whom is Otis. His large proportions extend not only to his six feet of muscle, but include a generous heart and a capacious head. Whenever there is a mean job to do that takes a trusty man, Otis gets it. In spite of the fact that he has been class treasurer for three terms, he has neither lost his amiable disposition nor his faith in mankind. As captain of our Sophomore baseball stars Otis held down first base to the humiliation of many an opponent.

HOWARD JAMES BELL, Auburn, New York.

No sooner had Albrecht left these parts than Penn sent us a representative, and since the arrival of "Renz," Easton society has added one more lion to its distinguished list. Busy with the cares that many engagements bring, Bell may be seen most any day, hurrying to and from the tailors, arms laden with suits of clothes, fancy vests, evening togs and all the latest creations of the sartorial profession, for you must know that much dancing plays the deuce with pants, and one must look just right to make an impression on the local élite.

REMSEN DU BOIS BIRD, Rondout, N. Y.

We now come to Remsen, a hard-working, public-spirited youth. He keeps his class work up, helps "Prex," and still finds time to serve The Touchstone, The Lafayette, and THE MELANGE. As Asst. Supervising Melange Artist, Remsen has come well up to the mark. In fact, for THE MELANGE, Remsen has acted the faithful knight. For exercise he devours books and writes poetry. It is rumored that he has an affinity in some part of our wide country. Doubtless waiting for her and the "Kingston Plain Speaker" are the two joys in his life.

HAROLD MCDANIEL BROWN, Elizabeth, N. J.

No place does "Browny" so sparkle as at a banquet (we omit shine). He is drawn to a banquet as a duck is to water. We all remember the famous toast he gave at the Freshman banquet. Socrates would have learned a new wrinkle if he had seen McD. shake that salt-cellar. But Soph. year Harold became a victim of a strong circumstance, Soph. Math. and since then he has retired to a "Skidoo" course consisting mostly of "Pussy" Lab. Doubtless this is responsible for his scholarly poise.

WILLIAM EUSTIS BROWN, Boonton, N. J.

When Ed. Brown brought little Willie to Lafayette College in 1905 the Freshman class realized that they had a "'09" youngster "with the goods." Bill also held the same views. He continues to hold them, because he has surpassed all expectations. As treasurer of the Y. M. C. A., he makes every sinner, due, shiver in his shoes and decamp to the woods or McKeen Hall. The beauty of this "MELANGE" testifies to his business abilities. He is going to dedicate the graft to building a kennel for "Old Joe's" animal.

MARVIN CLARENCE CARTER, Scranton, Pa.

"Nick" is erratic enough to be comparable to Harry K. Thaw. Indeed over at McKeen Hall they vow that to put it mildly he is a wild raving maniac, especially when he is trying to imitate the conglomeration of noises which would be emitted from a zoo where the animals hadn't been fed for fourteen days.

Clara is said to be a chemist, but "Buddy" indignantly denies that this is a fact.

However, when you come right down to facts, there are a lot of people who haven't much on "Brainstorm."

HAROLD RUSSELL CHIDSEY, Easton, Pa.

By the above you can note that "Chid" is one of the good lookers among us. The picture, by the way, was "took" in Bethlehem, for his friends advised him not to take his face to ——— for mutilation, so we have at least one good picture in the book. Besides furnishing us with the above, Harold has shown his class spirit by running the best Junior Hop that has been given here for some time. "Chid" entered with the idea of training for a sky pilot, but a wandering phrenologist read his bumps this winter and advised him to be a barker for a side show or a United States Senator. Harold is undecided which to take.

WILLIAM WALKER DARSIE, Pittsburg, Pa.

Pittsburg, with the aid of the élite and only Shadyside Academy, turned out this product. "Bill" is a football player of renown. He played a most spectacular game as linesman all season and Pittsburg (burg without the h) is proud of its faithful son. "Bill" is also strong on the "spoonoid" game, playing it with great success (?) in Easton and elsewhere. William is a handsome youth, like his brother George. The only trouble is he thinks too much of the Burg which never had a more loyal son or one who was more willing to fight for her fair name.

FRANK BERLIN DAVENPORT, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Behold one of our State-products—we have had many gifts from that Institution but he is among the best, is old "Davey."

Outside of his work and social interests, which are by no means few, for "Davey's" popularity does not end on the hill, he has another public office of great worth, i. e., "Photographer in Extraordinary to the College Faculty."

"Davey" has patented a prize stunt, "Sitting on the window sills of McKeen, playing coon songs on a banjo." O! how we should have missed him had he left us for good!

HARRY GARDNER DEWITT, Scranton, Pa.

Scranton again looms up before us in the form of Harry G. DeWitt. "De" is a very assiduous student and vows with a vow that he will be a Phi Beta Kap. Harry is a fusser in his own little way, in fact he was heard to say in his sleep one night, "Don't mind Robinson, girls, he won't fall out the window while I am here." "De's" chief diversion, when not poling, is attending socials and Sunday-school picnics, having been led into these dissipations by Atherton. He may make a Civil Engineer, but—

LINCOLN COOK DODGE, Hazleton, Pa.

"Mose," "Abe" and "Nigger" are a few of the appropriate names of this dark-skinned product of the Hazleton coal beds. He struck earth at Stockton. Question: Where is it? Despite his black face and curly hair, "Mose" is a good "Naught-Niner." As Class President he has shown ability to keep order once in awhile and ought to make a good strike-breaker. If he can give up Balzac and Fielding long enough, "Nigger" ought to make a pretty fair Civil Engineer.

DAVID REED EDWARDS, Chatham, N. J.

Bean Supe! Bean Supe! Pun'kin Pie!
Ach! du Lieber! Newark High.

With these famous words, since passed into history along with Caesar's Veni, Vidi, Vici speech, "Dave" made his début into campus circles Freshman year. He soon butted out, however, and with the exception of an occasional red streak going across the campus, we rarely see him, with the result that he is class monitor, and hard to faze with any question in Math. or Logic. Red hair may have something to do with this, but we imagine that application and a good gray lining in his noddle have more to do with it.

WILLIAM MOODIE EVANS, Syracuse, N. Y.

William Moodie Evans hails from Syracuse, in his mind the metropolis of New York State. "Billie" aspires to be a Civil Engineer and is already drawing up his matrimonial plans. He started his course on College Hill, but at present is attending the "kindergarten." He is a little "runt" and exceedingly handsome, as the picture indicates, and he usually can be seen in Abel's or the "Jewel," thus rivaling "Pidy" in his favorite pastime.

CLARENCE EDWARD FEE, Bremen, Germany.

C. E. Fee was India's contribution to 1909, and hence he goes by the title of "Rajah." It takes the combined efforts of his closest friends to locate him within 100 miles, for he is constantly inclined to take trips about our verdant country. We don't blame the fair sex for this, for "Rajah" is not fickle.

Though taking Latin Sci., "Rajah" does a great many things besides sleep. He is an excellent writer and a great reader. As yet we cannot prophesy his future, but we are sure he will produce the goods.

HOWARD WALKER FIELDS, Media, Pa.

When the Media boys back in the High School talk of college, Howard Fields' name is uttered with reverence and awe for "James" is "Meejas" representative at Lafayette. "James" doesn't know why he is called "James," nor does any one else, but he carries the appellation with austerity and unconcern. In social bouts "James" is always voted the representative from McKeen Hall, but because he has a girl in every port is rather his misfortune than failing. As one of the "L" men, 1909 is proud of him, for he was one of the record-making relay team in 1906.

NATHANIEL RUE FOSTER, Imlaystown, Pa.

Imlaystown, Pa., has brought forth from among its two inhabitants at least one notable, whose visage here greets you. Nathaniel is certain in his own mind that he is not a "Rube," and as he is a most estimable member of our college society, we would not hurt his feelings by insinuating that he is mistaken.

He is a conscientious student who shines in "Billy," but fairly glitters in Mecklin and whom we know will bring credit to himself and honor to Lafayette in his chosen vocation of a preacher.

FRANK ANDREW GEHR, Greensburg, Pa.

This tall, blue-eyed, gentle youth goes by the handle of "Greensburg" and "Y. M. C. A." Gehr. He inhabits McKeen Hall Park; in fact his attendance there is as regular as the letter box. His mode of living is very regular. For exercise he attends a class in the morning, plays poker from 1 to 3, shoots nickels from 3 to 6, and at night he gets on the home stretch of his exertions by leading the Y. M. C. A. The bump artist who read his noodle pronounced him a conglomeration, which is probably true. However, he did say he had a tendency to be a little tight, and this is verified by the class treasurer who tried to collect.

JOHN WAGENER GREEN, Easton, Pa.

Phi Beta Kappa lost a prize when "Greeny" entered college with 1909. It took him all Freshman year to get acquainted with his classmates, during which period he naturally graded '98. After learning more than the class-room names of the fellows about him, "Greeny" began to get sociable and cut classes now and then. Once he flunked to see how it felt and since then has occasionally repeated the stunt with varying degrees of success. "Pidy" is Green's friend and "Greeny" reciprocates by giving "Pidy" real book-learning to the awe of the other "studes." But when it comes to catching bugs and fastening four-syllabled names to them "Greeny" shines like "Pidy's" arc-lamp.

WILLIAM HENRY HARTZELL, Easton, Pa.

Down on a little Dutch farm hard by the Delaware, where they grow stones, corn and character, there sprouted a lad named William Henry Hartzell. One day he walked to Lafayette and happened to get there just in time to join the class of Naughty-Nine. He has been in the same class ever since. His movement is slow and uniform—the resultant of his head and heels. He has a thinking machine that will make him famous some day, if he isn't corrupted by "Old Joe's" Calculus, or McLaughlin doesn't blow him up in the Chemical Lab.

ROBERT HARRIS HUTCHISON, Malvern, Pa.

Stop, look, wonder, and admire the noble countenance of "Bob" Hutchison. No greater fusser ever trod the sod of Lafayette Campus. A student by nature—yet forgetting all, he spends his time upon the borders of Northampton Street, until the wee sma' hours of the night. Then coming up the hill, makes the welkin of East Hall ring with warhoops from his clarion throat. We all like "Bob," for we recognize the man beneath the riotous exterior; and grieving, ponder why he continues to do so.

RICHARD JOHANKNECHT, Rock Castle, Va.

This innocent-looking boy is really not so bad as his name would suggest. He struggled under that awful "jaw-breaker" at Patchogue, L. I., until he could scrape up enough knowledge to get in Lafayette, when his life became a very bed of roses. He was never made to recite because no one can pronounce his name. His worst sin is association with Newins. "Dick Johancar" will join the ranks of the Civils or raise dray horses at his home in Virginia. His name will breed success in either.

ADDISON LESLIE JONES, Easton, Pa.

You never will believe it,
But it's true without a doubt
That I'm in the automobile class
That "Pidy" talks about.

This is Addison Leslie Jones. You can see by his countenance that he is filled with wisdom. His greatest feat is talking automobile. In this he is monstrous. He can talk more or less knowledge and say less than any one. He talks commutator and cylinders on every conceivable occasion with or without a reasonable excuse.

ROBERT CONRAD KAY, Pittsburg, Pa.

Besides steel, grass widows and smoke, Pittsburg turns out an occasional "phenom"; to wit, the above. Among the eccentricities credited to "Bob" is an incurable affinity for getting to class five minutes after roll-call. "Sam" Mills swears (in Chinese) that he can never get the proper amount of rest in "Tute's" class because whenever at the psychological moment he bats his glims for a snooze, "Bobbie" invariably rushes in, slams the door and disturbs his slumber. Aside from this, "Bob" is an ornament to the campus and is making a strong bid to give us something classic in the show business in June.

MAHLON BUNTING KNOWLES, Yardley, Pa.

Before going into details, kindly notice the brainy twinkle in the right eye.

He is one of the natural sharks of the class, and even pulled 100 deportment in "Teddy B's" class. Ask "Teddy."

But if you gaze further on his manly form you will discover a build adapted to dancing and pole-vaulting, both of which he indulges in more or less (the "less" referring to pole-vaulting). Of immaculate manners and dress, it is easy to see that our classmate "Bowser" is a particular friend among the "umbrella-brim straws."

WALTER JOHN KOCHER, Easton, Pa.

When Buskhill Park's residents heard that G. F. Walter was going to enter Lafayette "Kotch" got the idea too and caught the same car for Easton with "Gawge." They have caught the same car ever since and bid fair to do so for another year. "Kotch" thinks all Mebus' talk about sanitary sewer construction is hot air, although he did believe it for awhile. As a student "Kotch" is happy and successful but not the boy shark. When it comes to a baseball discussion, a prize ring altercation or an impossible combination "from the break," "Kotch" can give you all the statistics necessary for a definite settlement of any argument.

THOMAS RIDGWAY LATHROPE, Carbondale, Pa.

T. R. Lathrope, after his first two days in Easton, emerged from his Carbondale coal dust and, revelling in his new-found cleanliness, donned Duck trousers as an unusual Freshman fancy. His valiant race for life in the protection of his "Ducks" from the Sophs. won him renown and a name. That was when "Ducks" first learned to blush, and he has been busy ever since. When he is not energetically making life a burden for James Fields, he may be found buying worn-out knives, skates, horns or rattlesnake skins from fellow-students.

JOSEPH G. LEAR, JR., Easton, Pa.

This handsome, young boy is a direct importation from the virgin forests of Lambertville, which, by the way, is in New Jersey. "King," as he is fondly known among the boys, is a great student and is classed as one of our germ and bacteria sharks. There are even rumors about his going up in "Pidy" being unjust, but, be that as it may, "King" possesses many good qualities, among them a hidden athletic ability, which we hope to make bloom ere he puts a sheep-skin under his arm. But bashfulness is a hard factor to work against.

We understand "King" is going to wear out the carpet behind a pulpit and in this line we predict great success for him.

FRANK HILL LERCH, JR., Easton, Pa.

This sad-eyed, melancholy youth is called Lerch (pronounced Larox). He spends most of his time in "Buddy's" making Xanthogenates, di-ethel-benoids and other horse liniments, but his long suits are athletics and love. He came within an ace of beating out "'Varsity" Jones for tackle on the class team. He then tried for "Craspy's" place, but the latter, by taking five-mile walks, kept his condition in such shape that he was unbeatable at end. In the game of love our "Larox" is supreme. His tall athletic build commands homage from the West Ward lilies, while those soft black eyes could melt a heart of stone. He will make a good chemist.

WILLIAM JOHN MCCANDLESS, Philadelphia, Pa.

"Mac" started out with Naught-Eight, but being imbued with the faith that good things come to him who waits, he waited a year and joined "metal more attractive." Like others of our class, "Mac" started out hot on the trail of Phi Beta Kappa, but has since cooled down to that agreeable degree of temperature where an occasional rush and a tolerably high grade are sufficient unto the day. Another comforting sign is that "Mac" has elected "Frankie" every term, and this shows a nature content with itself.

The City of Brotherly Love has sent here many men, but we venture to say, none more gentle and courteous than "Bill."

ALVAH RUFUS MCLAUGHLIN, Dunmore, Penna.

Dunmore is a little hamlet just outside of Scranton and is gradually nosing its way into the bosom of the larger city. A glance at Alvah Rufus, alias "Mac", shows that he comes from the former place, for both the effect of environment and the explosive force of big words have caused "Mac's" olfactory extremity to incline 45° to the North. "Mac's" affinity is water, but somehow he has successfully avoided it, from the windows of East Hall and the showers of the Gym., even to the present day. However, he knows more than his dapper appearance suggests, and some day may hang his coat over some star.

ALBERT RALPH MCMEEN, Mifflin, Pa.

"Ben," so-called because that is not his name, holds the enviable reputation of being the poler of McKeen Hall.

During the rare intervals when he is not grinding, he may be found reading Fox's "Martyrs" in the Y. M. C. A. library for prospective missionaries,—all this in spite of the fact that he is a General Sci.

But whatever else our opinion of him may be, we will have to concede that as a good fellow he has never been excelled, and that he is one of the best baseball players that ever upheld the honor of 1909.

ELLERY DOLSON MANLEY, Elmira, N. Y.

"Um-la," as Fee, in one of his spasms, once called Manley, is from up in "York State," otherwise celebrated as containing two of the greatest cities in the world, Elmira and New York City. Ellery divides his time between editing The Lafayette for the Sullivans and dissecting microbes for "Puss." In the latter we understand he is phenomenal and knows the difference between a beer germ and a common ordinary water animal. He also has made himself famous for his quiet manners and immaculate dress, and in many other ways has earned a host of friends. Ellery will be a doctor.

CHARLES FREDERICK MAXWELL, Greensburg, Pa.

"Max" is one of the fellows who decided "better late than never," for he didn't join us until our Sophomore year, but since then he has been one of us all the time. He is a steady, consistent student, always on the job, except when he wends his way towards Reading, which is more frequently than once in awhile.

We don't know what he intends to do upon graduating. He might be a doctor, a lawyer, a parson(?), a business man, and no doubt could successfully cause the young idea to shoot, but we are sure that he will be a credit and a pride to whatever vocation he selects.

CLIFTON POOL MAYFIELD, Washington, D. C.

Who would suspect that this smiling "physiog" would ever betray anarchistic designs, but you just ought to see "Our Clifton," when with the rest of the "Techs," he floats into "Teddy Bear's" half an hour after the recitation(?) has started.

Although a hard worker, Mayfield is by no means a "greasy grind," for he is a past-master in the society line and what he does not know about moonlight walks and straw-rides is not worth knowing.

Rumor has it that upon graduation he will occupy an obscure position in one of Easton's cement mills.

Something is the matter, however, for Mayfield has survived at least half a dozen roommates, but that is probably due to his somnambulistic tendencies when he may be seen climbing the front of Knox or doing parallel bar stunts out of the third story window.

PERCY ELWOOD MEBUS, Easton, Pa.

Percy began this game with 1908, but seeing 1909 in the distance decided to wait and have a better time. That he is having it he offers "Teddybear" as witness. As supervising artist of THE MELANGE, Percy claims he will do violence to the whole board of editors if any reference is made to his love affair, so that part of his write-up is omitted. As the boy electrician, Percy shines at his brightest while running the spot-light for the Sock and Buskin productions, but when it comes to drawing, "Poice" is right there, and his "floss" has ever been a source of wonderment to all his classmates, equal even to the tales he brings from "out at the cigar store." His future dream is to be a sanitary sewer engineer.

GEORGE FRANKLIN METZ, Hazleton, Pa.

"Metzie" belongs to the steady conservative element of the class. Freshman year he graded poorly, being lamentably weak in some subjects, but this only served as a healthy stimulant. By working when others slept, he steadily progressed, becoming more proficient. Now we look upon him as a full-fledged shark. He is the only man who can "rush" "Mud" on the hard stuff. This his classmates greatly appreciate. George, however, is lacking in boot-licking ability, so we can never expect him to land anything important. For this reason he often had to serve as a "Pidy" target. George's favorite recreations are beating "Greenie" at tennis and collecting money for the Technical Society.

EDWARD ARCHIBALD MEWHINNEY, Easton, Pa.

The wavy hair and dreamy eyes would ordinarily indicate a poet. But it is not a poet. It is Mewhinney. Moreover, it came from Princeton and it lives in Easton. And it is sad and melancholy. It is. It is a philosopher, is it not? "Meck" likes it because it is wise. It knows psychology as ordinary mortals know their alphabet. It devours Logic and feeds on Calculus. It is, in short, a "phenom." It is, is it not? It is not, is it?

SAMUEL JOHN MILLS, Chefoo, China.

Here we have Samuel John Mills, late of China. The picture gives no idea of "Maud's" length, which is quite some. "Sammy" is distinctly musical and holds down a bass position on all the college "harmony" teams, including chapel choir. It is even rumored that he sings solos in an Easton church, but we hope not. "Sammy" is working hard to get all "Pidy's" practical physics stowed away in view of his intended missionary work in the Flowery Kingdom.

EDWARD CORBIN MOORE, Flushing, N. Y.

"Ed" came to us from Flushing, Long Island, by way of George School, after hearing that we were all going to enter in the class of 1909, and he's been one of the boys ever since. As an earnest and consistent student "Ed" shines particularly, having never caught a condition and even having "Pidy" claiming relationship to him. When he can find time to leave his pipe and "Dill's Best," "Ed" dabbles in athletics, and back in the beginning of our Sophomore days when it came to finding a fellow to hold the cane in the scrap, we hunted up "Ed." There were heavier fellows in the class, but nevertheless "Ed" had to hold the cane because we knew of that aggressiveness that some day will make him a second Cecil Rhodes down in South Africa's mines.

HAROLD STEPHENSON NEWINS, Patchogue, N. Y.

Do you see that look of determination on his manly face? Well, this is Harold Newins, who came to us from Long Island.

There are two things he has as hobbies at College. The first is going down town for the mail in the evening and the other is waiting for the mail man on the steps of McKeen. We don't know, but we have our suspicions.

At home he has three hobbies. The first is going sailing on Long Island Sound with the "Sticker of the red two-centers" and the other two don't count for a cent.

JOHN ALLEN NIGHTINGALE, Easton, Pa.

This is one of Easton High School's finest productions. John is a student, too, among a few others, but we have never seen him overworked. His long figure can be seen coming across the Campus at certain hours, hunting a nice green spot to press down until class time. Not for mere oddity has he studied Horace and a few of the other mummies of the "stylus craze," for poems of no mean worth have come from his pen, sometimes, we think, almost good enough to put in The Touchstone. But, seriously, John, we know your future, and bright looms the clouds in front of you, as an ink-fish in the really literary line.

ALVIN CLYDE NOLF, Easton, Pa.

"Athletic Club" "Physicer" "Chemicer" "Aclyde" Nolf is the brainy visage that now confronts you. In that far-away gaze he no doubt sees his diploma, but what a fight it has been. From Freshman year, when he made bleaching-powder by passing hydrogen over cement, his troubles have been hard and many. But by possessing those sterling Saxson qualities, perseverance and good cheer, he has been able to vanquish condition after condition until at last the tyrants have become tired of presenting them. It is a good bet that he will land the "dip." In athletics, love, and other college activities "A. C." is the boy egg. He played a game on the '09 'Varsity, the game we nearly won. Before he could be thanked and presented with the numerals he appeared with them on. You are a good scout, "Aclyde," and we are sure you will make "Thomas A." hustle some day.

JOSHUA TYSON PAXSON, Dreshertown, Pa.

Persistency is occasionally the cause of perfection. J. T. persisted five times that his MELANGE proof was N. G. and now you see the sixth, perfection. The others, he thought, looked too much like him. Freshman poster night he tied up part of the Soph. class and waited to tie the other part up, but no one had nerve to follow him. When not arguing or winning fame on the track, "Josh" is devoting just enough time to work to keep his C. E. course salted.

His friends are loud in his praise, all predicting a rosy future. Some even now are sure he will eventually land that position of honor and trust, the mayoralty of Dreshertown.

HOWARD KENT PRESTON, Trenton, N. J.

"Chauncey" Preston comes from Trenton, N. J. He is called "Chauncey" not because it is his name but because "Si" thought he ought to be so named. Everybody seems to have forgotten his real name. Preston is a great financier; he can sell anything and everything, whether it is worth anything or not. Still they say no good can come out of Jersey. "Chauncey" also is in love. He goes to see her every night he does not study "Pidy" and twice on Sundays, altogether about eight times. His room-mate says he seldom gets a good night's sleep, as Preston seldom returns until one or two o'clock, but this we doubt. He will probably outgrow his present vagrancies, when he gets married.

SILAS SWALLOW RIDDLE, Bloomsburg, Pa.

This is "Si," the care-free boy. At State College he heard of the industry of 1909 and hence emigrated to lock his intellectual horns with the '09 Civils.

He has always followed the '09 Labor Union Rules to a dot, viz., 14 hours sleep with the rest of the time devoted to being amused. During spare time "Si" has been occasionally known to cultivate a lesson or two. While generally very lucky, one misfortune befell him.

In the progress of a brawl in "Tud's" our hero was ejected without the problem (without the problem). If the possession of many friends and few enemies means anything, we predict a rosy future for "Si."

ELBERT ROSS, Bangor, Pa.

Bangor gave us "Ross-E" and thereby helped keep 1909's class average near the point where the faculty would have it. "Ross-E" and Metz discovered each other at our first class-meeting, and from that time on have been inseparable. Ross is going to be a chemist, but his accomplishment doesn't stop there; he also mixes up in things musical, and does the Demosthenes stunt now and then in Wash Hall. As evidence of the fact that Syracuse and Bucknell both have co-educational standing, he points to the two pennants that adorn his wall, but further than that he says nothing.

WILLIAM CROSBY ROSS, Wilmington, Del.

The worst thing that can be said against "Bill" is that he is a curator of Brainerd Hall, but, "heaven knows, that is enough."

He looks like a poler, but appearances are sometimes deceptive.

Then again Bill is somewhat of a ladies' man, but this is confidential, for we are afraid if his boon companions get wise to this carefully concealed fact "Bill" might lose cast.

Ross is preparing to become a sky-pilot, and it looks as though he would make good in his line.

ROBERT AMANDUS SANDT, Easton, Pa.

Robert, known as "Genie," has what we call a motive temperament, i. e., he keeps on the move. This was shown poster night when single-handed (with a clear head) he fought 30 "Frosh." We admire his move and know he would have done it any way even if he hadn't been—. At Sophomore banquet, "Genie" joined the Patent Medicine Club, which was composed of "Carter Liver Pills" Wheeler, "Peruna" Moore and "Lydia Pinkham" Sandt.

This gathering so taxed his intellect that he fell asleep before his toast came. He knows the West City like a book and might be called the "West Ward Skeeter." In mathematics, "Genie" is a star. No class game of any kind has ever been played without his participation. As he is one of the leaders in scholarship and popularity, and as there is little else to excel in, we predict a great future for him.

ROLLIN ALGER SAWYER, JR., Harrisburg, Pa.

Dickinson gave up hopes of making a shark out of "Rastus," so sent him last fall, with apologies, to Lafayette, where he entered an abbreviated Classical Course. On the strength of a certificate from his last Alma Mater, Sawyer managed to avoid the horrors of "Meck's" Psychology and Logic, but with "Frankie" four times a week and Bible on Monday, he is kept awake part of each day and yet finds time to take in the Orpheum and an occasional stroll on Northampton boulevard. Coupled with a worthy contempt for all kinds of exertion is a happy, easy-going nature which makes "Rastus" a welcome addition to any gathering.

RALPH PERCY SCHELLY, Phillipsburg, N. J.

Ralph, alias "P-burg," prepared for '09 at Blair Hall. He is a fine boy which proves that heredity is stronger than environment. On looking over the list of things to do to help struggling humanity, he selected Chemistry as the best vocation, though many had picked him for "soul-jerking." Hence our Percy is now in line with the best of the acid manipulators. Anybody could tell that by the tobacco he chews, the stories he tells, or the fumes he generates. In athletics he showed much pluck in a football game against his former Alma Mater, Blair. The class gave him a vote of thanks, and conferred upon his noble breast that insignia of honor, the 1909 numerals. Hence Percy's fame will go down the ages with that of "Addie" Jones, "Chaunce" Preston, and "Athletic Club" Nolf.

ADOLPH P. SCHNEIDER, Honesdale, Pa.

When '09 assembled, many stories were rife of a wonderful personage in our midst. "Who's Schneider?" was asked as often as common questions like "Do Sophomores haze?" "Is 'Joe' crazy?" or "Prex a mucker?" etc. "Schnitz" soon verified his presence by word and clipping. As a baseball pitcher, he showed the goods as Princeton, Pennsylvania, Lehigh, and others can testify. In the business line he is also supreme as is shown by the book store management. At the Jr. Browse Schnitz advanced peculiar theories backing them up with a five-dollar bill and a Bible, but there were no takers. However, among his strong points is class loyalty and in this, history shows he has helped the boys in every crisis.

CARL FREDERICK SCHOEN, Scranton, Pa.

Schoen belongs to that class of students, commonly designated as "sharks," which analyzed into their elements show one part brains, one part application, one part grind, and ninety-seven parts bootlicking.

As a chemist, Carl has acquired considerable reputation, due chiefly to the three minor elements of his composition, but as a HD star, his entire drag is based upon the major part of his make-up.

He will be an absent-minded scientist unless fate steps in and decrees the dry-goods business for him. We predict he would make good in either line.

IRVIN JONATHAN SHAFER, Reading, Pa.

There is only one trouble with Shafer: he eats and sleeps and thereby wastes time which he ought to spend in study.

He knows more about Latin grammar than "Allan and Greenough." In Greek he is a star of the first magnitude. "Pidy" ranks him even above Schoen. German is his recreation, and when it comes to Math.—well words cannot express it, but he is unable to shake off the unmistakable accent of Berks County and on this account, sad to relate, his English suffers.

He is fated to become a preacher, and a more conscientious, harder worker than he will be, it is impossible to imagine.

BERT WILLIAM SIMPSON, Chicago, Ill.

Bert William Simpson is one of our travelers, for he has knocked around and seen life from Chicago to New Orleans, and from the Western to the Eastern Hemisphere. What Bert undertakes he accomplishes. Even so gigantic an undertaking as Manager of The Touchstone failed to floor him. If figures are consulted they show that he has been successful with our popular publication.

The rushes he makes in Cat Lab. have become a by-word in the Biological profession, and he is already contemplating editing a handy manual of definitions for any subject relating to the universe. Be it said, however, Bert is a man of his own convictions and not afraid to stand by them. We wish he might study less and let us see more of him.

HARRY T. SPENGLER, Easton, Pa.

All the yarns that Mebus forgets about "the cigar store," "Spang" gives us, but these tales are only secondary to Glee Club reminiscences with which he fairly bristles. With his subway basso voice and sky-rocket humor, Harry T. has been the cause of turmoil in more than one recitation. As a singer, all Nineteen-Niners point to him with inflated bosoms and cheers, and without him we know the Musical Clubs would be only a name.

As a class-room bluffer there are few can touch even the hem of his garment, but "Pidy" told him the story of the carrot in Applied Mechanics. "Spang's" pinnacle of ambition is to some day star in an act like Torcat on the vaudeville stage with a few sentimental ballads thrown in. However, our H. T. will win out if he draws nothing more than a pair of deuces in the first hand.

MILLER DIDAMA STEEVER, Fort Meade, So. Dak.

"Did's" address in the catalogue is Philippine Islands where he left his father's regiment to come to college after having investigated nearly all the army posts in the states. On reaching Lafayette, "Steve" took his natural place among the leaders of his class and has an invulnerable drag with "Honey" and "Joe," and bears the remarkable distinction of being the first MELANGE editor that "Pidy" did not send up. His capacity for work is alarming and his more trifling doings hereabouts are his Deutscher Verein activities and his Latin Scientific Course.

EDGAR MARK TROUTFELT, Scranton, Pa.

'Tis a topic most engrossing
It fills my soul with glee
I talk from morn till evening
On I, myself and me.

GEORGE FRANKLIN WALTER, Easton, Pa.

When George—lovingly called "Gawge" by his playmates in the struggle—finished everything in the way of learning that divers prep. schools had to offer, he looked for more worlds to conquer and naturally Lafayette was the first point in his field of vision. "Gawge" is now busy answering the questions that Lafayette's faculty asks and is answering them so well that he is always in great demand by other boys who have the same questions to answer. He used to be a reluctant disseminator of information until Mebus compared him to a diving-suit in tightness, since which time "Gawge" has been disproving the slander. If he doesn't become as care-free as "Greeny" and gets off his Roads and Pavements he will draw a paper with the rest of the boys in June.

ROBERT STANLEY WALTER, Easton, Pa.

Our class has been stung, in the course of its vicissitudes, with as many as four different varieties of Walter, but this is the only and one "Bob" Walter; the original and inimitable; no substitutes accepted. Ask for "Bob" Walter. That "Bob" has reached the stately dignity of a Junior may be attributed to his wonderful ability in throwing a full-sized chesty bluff. To the uninitiated, Robert might seem to be in line for Phi Beta Kappa but to those who are "on," his recitations are fearfully and wonderfully made. If a care-free nature signifies anything, he will succeed. By the way, would you pick him out for a preacher?

FRANCIS BENJAMIN WATKINS, Washington, D. C.

"Watty" started from his home in Washington, D. C., to enter Lafayette when the rest of us did, but fell asleep in the cab on his way to the station and did not regain consciousness until it was too late to do anything but enter George Washington University at home. He finally did get here at the beginning of our Junior year and soon made up for lost time by being the boy satellite with the ladies and telling "Pidy" about civil service reforms. Some one called "Watty" "Sleepy" on one occasion and his present appellation "Somnambulist" thence evolved. Ever since then "Somnambulist" has been busy trying to dope out why he is so named as well as get even with everybody so naming him. However we're glad "Somnambulist" did come with us because we all like him pretty well and hope to give him the high sign at many a class reunion in years to come. He expects to go with the Guggenheims after finishing mining here.

FRANK HAPPERSETT WELLS, JR., Chester Springs, Pa.

Romeo had his Juliet, Harry Thaw his Evelyn Nesbitt, but "Frankie" had "Sadie." The romance of this young and inexperienced Junior with the fair Pottsville maiden was welcomed with joy by the entire college. But, alas, of late an estrangement has taken place. When "Sadie's" name is mentioned "Frankie" grows pale and distant. We fear lest Harold Brown, since he left college, has captured anew the fickle "Sadie" fancy.

But anon! "Frankie" had the high but laudable idea of completing the class alphabet in THE MELANGE, but General Wight's return has spoiled all hopes. Wells has become quite a "Pussy" shark and withal a good deal of a poler. He intends to take up the medical profession in which we wish Phoenixville all success.

FREDERICK ERNEST WHEELER, Buffalo, N. Y.

Gone but not forgotten is the edict we pronounce for "Freddie." Friends and enemies will alike agree on this. His characteristics, nerve, generosity, brilliancy and impulsiveness always left a wake of smiles and frowns. In class loyalty he was a leader. We could count on him to move houses, to lambast "Frosh," to put "Tud" on the "rink" and in short to take part in all patriotic movements. Also in the Sock and Buskin he made good. But where "Freddie" starred was in his power of bluff. He would take any chance, would bluff a pair against a full house and in nine times out of ten, land it. This policy goes better outside of college than in and hence our "Freddie" was a little discredited in the wondrous tales he told. His imaginary trip to Buffalo one day gave him the title of "Buffalo Bill" Wheeler. We predict a rough but successful future for him.

Our Alumni

JOSEPH A. ALBRECHT, New York City

This wild-eyed boy entered Lafayette from Columbia. Whether the Columbia "Frosh" run the college or not we are unable to say, but suffice it to be that he made a strong bid to run Lafayette. His maiden speech in the '09 chamber against the "Frosh" posters drew the dew from all lamps. His dignity was hazed and calamity befell the college. But Soph. year, "Joe" seemed to absorb a little sense and probably if he had stayed would have turned out a wise youth.

FRED BICKNELL ATHERTON, Scranton, Pa.

This elongated Scranton youth answers to the call of "Freddie" Atherton. "Freddie's" accomplishments are a castor oil smile, ability to tickle the mandolin, and the power to find out what is in any mixture or compound. In short, he is a fine chemist. He took Junior chemistry Freshman year, much to "Buddy's" displeasure at losing so much Lab. graft. He left college at the end of Soph. year, but his friends rejoice to know he intends returning in 1909.

ENNIS WINTHROP BACHMAN, Orange, N. J.

The art of fussing never attained such perfection as when the figure of Bachman graced our Campus Beautiful, but the tears of the college widow, the entreaties of the Northampton belle, were alike in vain and "Backy" left for other fields. Perhaps no one ever took his lady-killing serious, for he never seemed to "arrive," though he was at some pains to keep up the appearance of fusser. The different varieties of perfume that at times enhanced the attractiveness of his person to a more or less degree, will be remembered when other things are long forgotten. Perhaps this account might be concluded by saying that if "Backy" had stayed longer who knows but what he would have cut quite a figure in the local matrimonial contest?

ERNEST STRATTON BARKER, Bayonne, N. J.

Barker entered college with '09 but only stayed Freshman year. The Classical Course did not prove exciting enough, for he had firmly resolved to become a "Tech" if ever the opportunity afforded. In and about college he was known as a model youth carrying well the honor of being a dominie's son. He played basketball on the Acmon 2nd Team, and many are the honors he won for the dear old town of "P-burg." We wish him luck in his new field.

CHARLES WILLIAM ALEXANDER, CANNON, Philadelphia, Pa.

"Cwac" was a product of the Bordentown Military Institute and came here to add his laurels to those other varieties which that school has bequeathed us. Being of generous proportions he was sturdy enough not only to bear the burden of a ponderous name but to serve as a faithful center on our famous Freshman football team. That he only stayed here two terms was due to a too genial nature rather than that the pace set by his fellow "Techs" was too stiff.

Our greatest debt to his genius is the Freshman banquet which he engineered for us at Trenton. Long live the memories of that festive night! We hear that "Cwac" is making good in the railroad business and wish him success.

HEBERT TERRY CONKLIN, Patchogue, N. Y.

Herbert Terry or "Conky" got tired of digging clams at Patchogue, L. I., so he came to Lafayette to take engineering. When Patchogue turned out to say farewell no one was as downcast as a certain little blonde damsel. Hence his friends appreciate that far-away look that sometimes invades his visage. But "Conky" is generally happy and optimistic, despite a few "Cons" and an affair of the heart. That he has no drag with the faculty may be due to the fact that "Husky" Rogers came from Long Island, so keep on giving them the laugh, "Conky," and don't let them get you down.

GEORGE DARSIE, Pittsburg, Pa.

George Darsie, the boy composer, sometimes called Darsie IV, is also from Pittsburg. He is strong in voice but stronger with the gentler sex; hence his sudden and hasty departure to the fields of coin. A handsome youth, he is sure to make good with the ladies, if not in the fields of higher learning and music. When the class lost George, it lost its star preformer and comedian. George, we wish you were back with us.

J. PAUL FELVER, Easton, Pa.

"Who stole the bell clapper?" This question has never been answered to the satisfaction of the faculty, but we surmise that the above alumnus, now free from the talons of "Doc" and "Chief," might, if he wished, divulge the secret. At any rate Paul was out the night the clapper disappeared and as Paul was so seldom out at night, the inference is reasonable. When he was not swapping stories with Cannon or dodging Sophomores, Felver was busy getting off chapel cuts or computing the greatest number of conditions a man may have and still stay in college. Like the majority of our alumni, Paul has made a better success out in "the wide, wide world" than in the scramble for the higher education, and may sometimes be seen on the boulevards of Easton wrapped snug in a fur coat and placidly smoking a ten-center.

CLIFFORD STANTON HEINZ, Pittsburg, Pa.

We will doubtless forget many things we heard in college, but never the time when "Pickle" Heinz recited the fifty-seven varieties to a crowd of admiring fellow classmen on the night of a memorable "bee" Freshman year. Pittsburg turns out some able men, but there is a limit to human endurance, and the task of carrying eight conditions was too much for "Clif." He hied himself back to the Pickle factory and has since been distinguishing himself in various ways, among them, joining the order to which "Billy" Boult and Campbell have allied themselves, for we read that "Heine" has succumbed to the arts of Cupid and is a married man.

WILLIAM STANLEY LANTERMAN, Easton, Pa.

"Lanly Stanterman" entered with '09 but had to drop back to 1910 because of "Pidy's" stuff. He still has a few subjects with the '09 miners, for it is the Mining Course that he pursues. On the mining trip he bunked with "Somnambulist" Watkins and had remarkable success in keeping him awake. This makes us think he will make good.

"Lanly," when not polling mining, works as a reporter, for he is the Easton Argus's distinguished representative. He also occasionally acts the chivalrous part by leading the cotillion at the Saturday night "Pig Iron." We predict a lily-white future for our "Lanly."

LASLEY LEE, Carbondale, Pa.

Lasley Lee entered college with Naughty-Eight and remained the entire Freshman year in their midst, helping greatly to pull up the class average. Getting the idea, however, that he wanted to be a "Tech," he sold his Latin trots at a sacrifice and dropped back with 1909. The way he had his stuff up was a caution, but his strong, active mind further thirsted for knowledge, which led him to leave and enter with the "greasers" at Boston Tech. Though we believe he erred we wish him great success.

HARRY LEWIS RAUL, Easton, Pa.

Harry entered Lafayette with Naughty-Eight, but being a fellow of delicate tastes he dropped that gang and entered with us. Then misfortune pursued him, for his eyes gave out and he had to leave college. As an artist and sculptor Harry bids fair to become famous. Since leaving college he has vigorously applied himself along these lines. Harry was of a most cheerful disposition and always had a pleasant word for everybody. Suffice it to say we miss him, but feel sure he will deliver the goods.

JAMES HENRY REEDER. Hughesville, Pa.

Gettysburg College sent J. Henry to us, with his prominent pompadour, entirely unacquainted with the tonic effects of flour and water. He was fortunate in securing "Biddy" Barr for a room-mate. After duly initiating him into the trials and terrors of Martien Hall, "Biddy" used to hold weekly receptions for J. Henry and his friends. On these occasions a healthy billiard cue served as spokesman, giving much needed advice to J. Henry and others like "Fred" Wheeler. J. Henry left college to assume the duties of chief engineer of a Trunk R. R., but we don't know how much further he got than the baggage-room.

HERBERT OTTO ROESCH, Pendleton, Ore.

From the wild and woolly west came our erstwhile classmate "Happy" Roesch. Destined to be with us for a short time, he started his college career with a rush. Immediately upon our arrival, we organized and elected him our first President and until he left us at the close of the second term "Frosh" year, he was ever very much in evidence. Shortly after his departure he entered Annapolis, and we understand that he is successfully achieving his ambition of becoming a sailor man.

RICHARD NYE MERRILL SNYDER, Easton, Pa.

"Dick" was one of the good fellows of our class and we hated to lose him. Whatever came up he was always with the boys. "Dick" with "Pete" Walters and Mitchell were our star students. In this time we were never hindered by 90% class averages. Early in his college course he encountered "Buddy's" graft, so he changed to become a balmy "Latin Sci." This ran down his health so he quit. To the Sock and Buskin he rendered in valuable service by composing and playing many of its most popular songs. No one in college could equal him in this field. When we count his friends we conclude his course was a success.

HARRY TAYLOR UPDEGROVE, Easton, Pa.

An insatiable desire to "muckle" and an utter abhorrence of books seem to be the prominent characteristics of "Upde." The latter proved fatal, for even the parental drag nor faculty vote could save the delinquent, and "Upde" fell a victim to "Prex's" merciless ax. The chief reason why "Doc" was an object of envy to the rest of his classmates seems to have been neither his ability to catch conditions, or to blow up apparatus in the Chemical Lab., but because he could cut Gym. at his pleasure. Aside from the fact that "Doc" has changed his seat in chapel he seems as much as ever a member of Naughty-Nine. As to the rest, we are assured that sometime in the future—perhaps with our own sons—he will get his "Dip."

WILLIAM STEPHEN WASMUND, Detroit, Mich.

Wasmund was one of our few athletic warriors. He entered college with 1909, but only stayed one term. As half-back on the 'Varsity he displayed good speed and grit. He could be always counted upon to keep his head in any crisis. He was ambitious and hence decided to go to Michigan and cast his fortunes with "Hurry-Up" Yost. There he made good, playing quarter-back on the 'Varsity. Wasmund was a good student and a gentleman, and hence Lafayette seriously regretted his loss.

MILTON K. YORKS, Bloomsburg, Pa.

That Yorks is now a member of 1910 is neither his fault nor any one else's, for if everything else failed his phenomenal drag with Joseph Johnston last year would have been enough to keep him in the class.

Milton is a fellow townsman of "Si's" and between the two of them they intend to convert Bloomsburg into the largest city in the state. "Si" will take care of the journalistic department, while Yorks will have control of all other branches, running silk mills as a side attraction.

THE MELANGE 1909
LITERARY

Lafayette

YE Hills, ye Hills! the stalwart guards of old,
That watch with wasting care the secrets dimmed
By untold ages of the ancient past,
Which man has tried to solve with fettered brain
Alas in vain, or oft with ill success,
Ye are the first to kiss the rosy Dawn.
At eventide ye catch the slanting rays
That linger just for one more fond embrace
Before departing with the fiery orb
Which gave them birth. Oh Hills, how blest ye are!
For here embossed upon your noble crown
Rich set in emerald of the purest hue,
Like seals of old cut from the rarest gems;
Here stands a work wrought by the hand of man
Which stamps on all who pass beneath its rolls
The impress of those qualities which make
Both true and strong the hearts of Sons of Men.
Above in wayward flight the fleecy clouds
Cast fitful shadows on the vales below,
Where winding in and out through time-worn gaps
The sparkling Delaware endeavors to
Be free. Here Earth and Heaven both unite
To grant the benediction of good will
Upon these classic walls that grace the deeds
Of those who knew the worth of human souls.

From here the courage of the free springs forth,
And manliness walks hand in hand with truth
Here wisdom curbs the restive force of thought,
And guides the molten impulse of the youth,
To flow in channels that increase with years.
To Him, who long ago came to these shores
To take the cause of Liberty in our Behalf—To Thee, whose sons are wont to spread
An influence of love and sacrifice,
Which cannot be restrained by these fair walls
But scatters far and wide o'er land and sea—
To Him, to Thee, whose motto still resounds
In never-dying echoes on our ears,
"He first must give who would the best e'er get,"
Let all the world give honor and respect
And Hail the Man, the College, "Lafayette."

PLOT

(His Satanic Majesty in disguise cometh to the photo shop of a mortal in a certain well-known city, for constant rumors have reached his ears that the said mortal doth deserve a dread and fearful punishment. His visit ended, he returns to his kingdom and shortly after ye Photo is summoned to appear before him. Ye Photo's experiences and his miserable end.)

Act I, Scene 1.

His Majesty, resembling an old man, Mr. B. L. Z. Bubb, is directed to the photo. estab. by several students. He stops before a little shop, presuming this to be the place, as a few pictures are scattered about the window. He observes a pair of very ragged, moth-eaten awnings overhead, some dreadfully soiled curtains hung within and a card in the door: "Will be back at 1 o'clock." It is now 12.45, so "Bubb" takes a stroll around. Returns at 1.15. Door still locked. Comes again 1.30. Conditions same as before. "Bubb's" wrath now begins to rise. Once more returns, 1.45. Door won't open. Temp. of "Bubb's" anger now 212°. About 2.30 a Figure saunters up and opens door. "Bubb" enters, stumbles over a big rent in the carpet. A dense cloud of dust rises. "Bubb" chokes and almost strangles. Finally is able to see the Figure before him which is arrayed in a Very Much Soiled collar, a Very Much Grease-Spotted coat, a pair of Very Old, Torn trousers and Exceedingly Decrepit shoes. Supposes this to be the janitor, so asks when the Prop. will appear.

The Figure: "I am the Prop. of this estab."

Mr. Bubb: "YOU!" The blow so floors "Bubb" that he is forced to sit down. More dust! The leg of the chair comes off. "Bubb," in a sweet voice, makes many sarcastic remarks about the weather, etc.

At last "Bubb" is conducted into an ante-room. Nearly freezes. Thermom. 40°. Walks very carefully across slanting floor. Floor trembles and bends. "Bubb" finally seated in a chair (part of the original furniture of the "Mayflower"). The Figure bolsters him up with cracker-boxes, books, old boards, musty cushions, etc. Good glass plates are put under rollers of the cam. and chair to keep them steady. Curtains are pulled here and there. Perfect clouds of dust descend. "Bubb" is told to stop smoking; the plates are extremely sensitive about it, the Prop. explains. The floor sinks 3 inches. Everything now ready. A fake plate taken first, then the real thing and the agony is over. "Bubb," dreadfully fatigued, finds it is 4 o'clock. Is promised his proofs the next day SURE and his pictures in a WEEK.

Mr. Bubb now returns to his kingdom, breathing wrath, fire and cuss-words. (Represent "Bubb" in this scene carefully as follows: A little old man, small white goatee, blue or green eyes, a pair of little horns on his forehead, etc. Include a high, squeaky voice and a constant habit of spitting on the floor. Also throw in a general dislike for most college students, a hatred for athletics and a thoroughly cussed, crabbed nature.) His proofs are not ready the next day or the next or the next. Gets them at last 10 days late. Pictures not finished at week's end, of course. Is promised them the next week. Nothing doing. Surely can have them in 2 days. Still nothing doing. Another week! Nothing further doing. "Bubb" 'phones, rants, raves, rages, roars, but as yet nothing doing. Has all the imps hard at work preparing punishments. In 5 weeks gets $^1/_2$ of pictures, 2 weeks later the rest.

Act II. Scene Shifted.

(The Figure is brought to the Infernal Regions.)

The guards of the yawning gates conduct the Figure to the palace of Mr. Bubb. Is told the king will see him in 15 minutes. He is seated on a wobbly chair and an unceasing cloud of dust pours down upon him. The Figure does not appear to mind it; the thicker the dust the more at home he seems. He whistles, sings and seems delighted. Disgusted, the imps after several hours lead him to "Bubb." They walk a long distance over a quaking, trembling floor with a decided slope. Huge coal-scuttles, stoves, boxes, glass-plates, and other things strew the path. The Figure seems so familiar with the surroundings that he never stumbles. He is dragged before "Bubb," who is seated on a great throne about which is grouped a vast concourse of imps. Awful howls of rage and wrath burst from the assembled multitudes. The Photo's doom is read and he is hurried first to the Cold Regions. Here the Figure is placed upon an iceberg and icy breezes are blown upon him. But he is in his element. The colder it gets the more comfortable it seems. "Makes me think of the estab.," the Figure is heard to whisper. Then the imps grow angry, very angry. "He must have the opposite," they declare.

So—first, the Figure is plunged in a pool of warm water and Washed! Oh, how he suffers and Oh, how much soap it takes! His shrieks resound to the end of "Bubb's" domains. Each day he is told he will be taken out before night but there he is left for several weeks. And when at last he is released, his worst enemy would not know him! Pale and pallid he walks forth, a changed man.

Then—he is placed in a Warm room, from which every particle of Dust has been extracted and which is utterly Empty. The floor, moreover, is perfectly Level. He is told for 2 days he must remain here. Oh, what torments were his! At the end of the 2 days there is no relief. He yells commands, implores, beseeches to be taken from this horrible place but to no purpose. He wanders ceaselessly about, dodging supposed stoves and chairs, now stepping high over an imaginary coal-scuttle, now side-stepping for some imagined pictures, plates, films, soap-boxes, etc., just as he used to do in the estab. When finally he is released, his hair is gray.

Act III. Scene Again Shifted.

When the Figure comes to himself, after his return journey to this world, he perceives he is standing before a long lane of college students, each one of whom is armed with a huge object resembling a bed-slat. Overhead a wire runs extending the length of the lane. To this he is attached by means of a strong rope and a wheel. A whistle blows and he is moved slowly forward.

Kind Reader, we will spare the next scene. Before the Figure a lane of dancing figures and waving clubs. Behind a stretch of ground strewn with splintered wood. At the further end the Remnants are collected and placed with great care in the biological lab. of a great scientist and labeled: "Ye Photo-Grafter: A Lesson in Morals. Never Lie nor Procrastinate."

Overheard in "Cookie's"

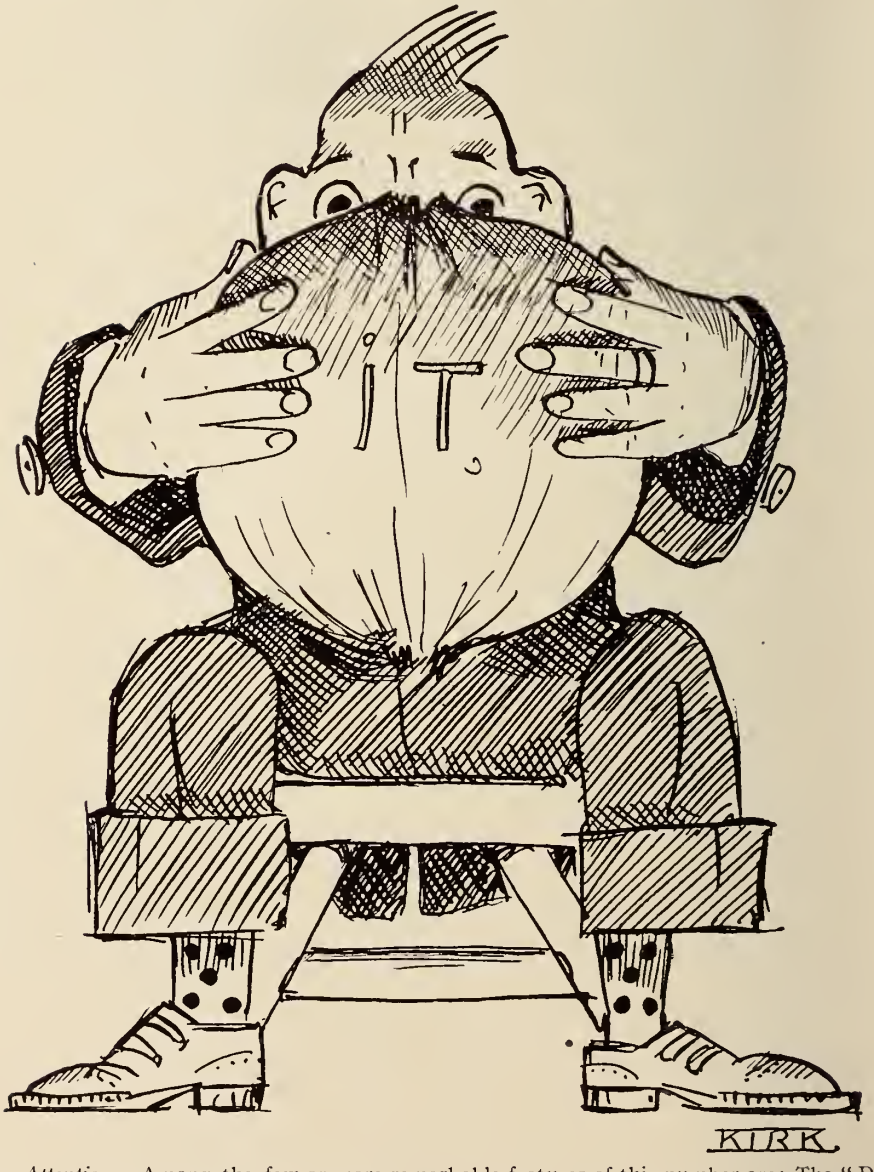
Where General Wight got the graphophone he always kept a secret. He said he "brought it from home." Finally "Ducks" Lathrope, while trying to buy several pairs of old skates, saw the machine and it looked so time-worn that "Ducks" was won on the spot, and after a lengthy argument proudly bore the trophy to his room. From that time on "Red" Farquhar, with varying degrees of seriousness, considered moving out of McKeen's fourth floor and thus escape his regular midnightly treats to "The King of France," "Down where the Wurzburger Flows," "Selections from Floradora" and divers other peace-destroyers. Finally one day when "Ducks" had a class "Davvy" got the graphophone with its records in his room for the edification of P. E. Mebus, "Freddie" Wheeler and a few fellow students. The result was, as usual, the graphophone was listed for repairs and "The King of France" with several companion records started for the campus through the open window.

"Ducks" was highly indignant and revengeful but when it came to getting new records there came a brilliant thought. "Ducks" got blank records and with new equipment started out to make his own selections.

"Cookie's "life-saving station on a Sunday morning was the port visited and on three clean records "Ducks" captured these impressions: —— —— "and then I said 'aw have another, but he said —— hey "Cookie," where's that milk toast I'm —— Gee she was a beaut, third one from the left end on the front row ——Prex? no, some preacher from the tall grass; hope he's done by twelve o'clock —— can't, because I've got nineteen cuts now ——— rains every Sunday —— Gimme that hat ——— caught the last car for the hill —— down at Nabby's —— at 5.30 in Brainerd, 'Immortality of the Soul' ——— take ten cents out of that ——— down at Garren's afterwards ——— Who broke your window, "Cookie"? ——— of a note, that's what it is; why, I've got so much work now I don't know where I am ——— some cheap two-beer jag —— chocolate, vanilla, bisque and strawberry ——— let's see the sporting section ——— Make out in your re-exam ? ——— had on one of those big frizzy Merry Widow sailor hats ——— splendid, perfectly splendid; why, he explained divinity so ——— got an awful headache now ———.

And then "Dukes" carried off the graphophone in triumph, looking for new worlds to conquer.

The Quince



Attention.—Among the few or more remarkable features of this number are: The "Dedication," a work of intrinsic merit, illustrated by an unknown artist; a tender little ballad entitled "Joe and the Jail Bird," also embellished by a rare print; a minute account of "The Tiddledywinks Club," introducing notable men of the time; and three artist proofs depicting familiar scenes around our campus under the title, "Malefactors of Great Wealth;" besides an edifying extract from the "Easton Sunday Bawl," and other pieces of delicate humor and exquisite workmanship.

Dedication

"The Quince" herewith butts an entrance into the court of letters; not as a rival to The Touchstone nor daring to hope to be the peer of The Police Gazette. It merely does the butting.

In the first place our publication had to be dedicated to some one worthy of that distinction. After due deliberation it was agreed that "The Quince" be thrown at that one be-pedestaled in the minds of all the loyal Lafayetters; namely, R. P. Rex.

Hence; we the Horace Greeleys, who made "The Quince" the luscious reality it here appears, lovingly and even gratuitously present and do dedicate it in all its splendor, in all its mastodonic entirety, absolutely and unreservedly, wholly, wholly, wholly to R. P. Rex.

Just as Rex in the Latin is king, R. P. Rex is no less king in his own realm, and for these same kingly qualities and generous application of the same we hand him out as a trifling tribute—"The Quince." Who he is and why he came to Lafayette has often been dwelt upon at length and re-repetition we can not deal with. But there is another phase, yet another side to this remarkable personality, namely, athletics. As the one leg in the Y. M. C. A. triangle is the "body," it was not overlooked in the case of Mr. Rex. Way back in the baseball days before the "Dick Merriwell Jump Ball" reached its zenith among the fraternity of Rube Waddells there was a certain delivery discovered by a man far-famed as a pitcher who is thought by some to have been the unnamed hero who struck out De Wolf Hopper's immortal "Casey."

This same unnamed hero appeared only in games at which the honor of his "Alma Matt" was at stake, and for that reason is unlabeled in the world of sports. Yet although not claiming to be the inventor of the modern saliva ball he had one strikingly similar, and lovingly called it "The Vine," on account of its twisting characteristics.

Then, too, he ran,—not to or from danger but on the track and cross lots for the glory of learning. His stride was long and strong and at many a meet he was the pride of the exhorters.

Therefore not as is customary in dedication do we dwell on scholarly attainments, but merely on athletic ability and in recognition of these feats of physical vigor in this dedication made. As stated by Mr. Rex himself not "athletics for a few but athletics for all" and although we may not all play football we have at our disposal the magnificently constructed tennis-courts behind the dormitories as mute evidences of the fact that all who care for a milder form of exercise may so indulge.

Mining Trip

Great consternation, the party at P-burg station and not a sign of the Somnambulist. Marquard, "Muck's" anointed, looks after the gang. Somebody evidently woke W-a-r-t-y up for he appears and joins the crowd just in time to be hauled through space to the white light burg of Scranton.

J. Whitney in taking a general inventory of his assets scores heavily by possessing a pleasing personality, by having read the "Coal and Metal Miner's Hand Book" and by not leastly having once shown his rare self to the rats and vermin of a coal mine. Hence with this weighty accoutrement "J. W." makes a motion, seconds it and unanimously passes it that he boss the party. Everybody is visibly effected. Mr. Marquard maintains the righteous calmness of the gentleman, Julie rips off a few, and Lanly by his own admission nearly buys a drink. Plutonic regions now reached. Somebody (not Hauck) carrying the grub. Julie for once in his life pleases "J. Whitney." He runs in 25 stations in a forenoon breaking all mine records. Is ably assisted by apt suggestions from "J. Whitney," Caswell, Skin Flad, the Sleep Walker, and others. Noon hour comes and J. W. endows the lunchers with a yarn of how he used to run the gun on a 75° slope (See "Coal and Metal Miners Hand Book"). Somnambulist is wakened and afternoon work started. Mr. Marquard's party check Julie's work within two degrees per station. "Colie" gets mad and outlines to Freund a performance that would take him two weeks to follow. Bats out another yarn about his experience concerning rapidity and accuracy (See "Coal and Metal Miners Hand Book," Chapt. X). Chorus, "Do it by Descriptive." "Colie" raves and Julie swears. Six wagers made as to whether "Julie" would get through next term's electricity. Peace finally restored by Marquard.

Night comes and pulls on the robe of harmony. Julie takes the head waitress to church, J. Whitney poles "Coal and Metal Miners Hand Book," and Marquard with the rest of the bunch seek recreation at the Columbia by viewing "French Maids."

"The Sock and Buskin Performance"

Or What Did Not Appear in the "Easton Sunday Bawl" Last February

"Taken all through, the exhibit shoved off on a long suffering public by alleged students of Lafayette College at the opera house the other night was not a good show at all. None of the striplings who cavorted about the stage even for a minute thrilled his audience as would Richard Mansfield in an entirely different sort of a play. Even the office devil who has seen Chester De Vonde on several occasions failed to say more than "Punk" when interrogated as to his opinion of the show. Not a man was killed during the entire performance nor was Caruso rivaled in song. Joe Jeffersonian acting was conspicuous by its absence, and the songs were of the common catchy kind which, owing to our own intellectual height, we do not even deign to whistle.

"It is with a great deal of pleasure that we can state that several Easton boys were prominent in the cast and with true patriotic sentiment we will now endeavor to throw the prong into not only their acting on the stage but wherever we can remember having seen them before.

"In the first place Charles Maxwell had a leading part. Now there's a fellow who is not near up to the par of such men as Webber or Fields, or even Eddie Foy, and he has been on the stage almost six times in these amateur college productions.

"Henry Buckley 'also ran' and was too natural to be good. We could catch Henry either way, because if he had acted we could say he was unnatural and thus afford ourselves much enjoyment. That fixes Henry.

"'Dick' Snyder directed the orchestra, and as 'Dick' is also from Easton he must be harpooned, so in passing will state that 'Dick's' songs, which he wrote himself, were no good.

"'Freddie' Wheeler will now get his. Unfortunately 'Freddie' danced very well, but his dance was not 'buck and wing' but just a lot of foolish running around the stage. As a girl he was a failure because by careful attention to his mannerisms and voice one could tell without difficulty that he was simply a fellow dressed up like a girl. This was true of all the so-called 'chorus girls' in the cast.

"Hotchkiss was a girl too, and a poor one. His crying was unnatural and he was too short. Blaicher the sheriff and 'Hip' Logan the coon were fair, but several of the leading play-houses along Broadway have had much better actors appearing all winter.

"As a whole the show lacked continuity, and did not nearly have the plot to it that is so admirably found in either 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' or 'Ten Nights in a Bar-Room.'

"Worst of all is that the show was given by the college students and the house was filled by friends of the college who seemed to enjoy the production. These friends overlooked short-comings that they would not have tolerated in a bona-fide company, so we take this method of informing them they were stung and should get wise to themselves.

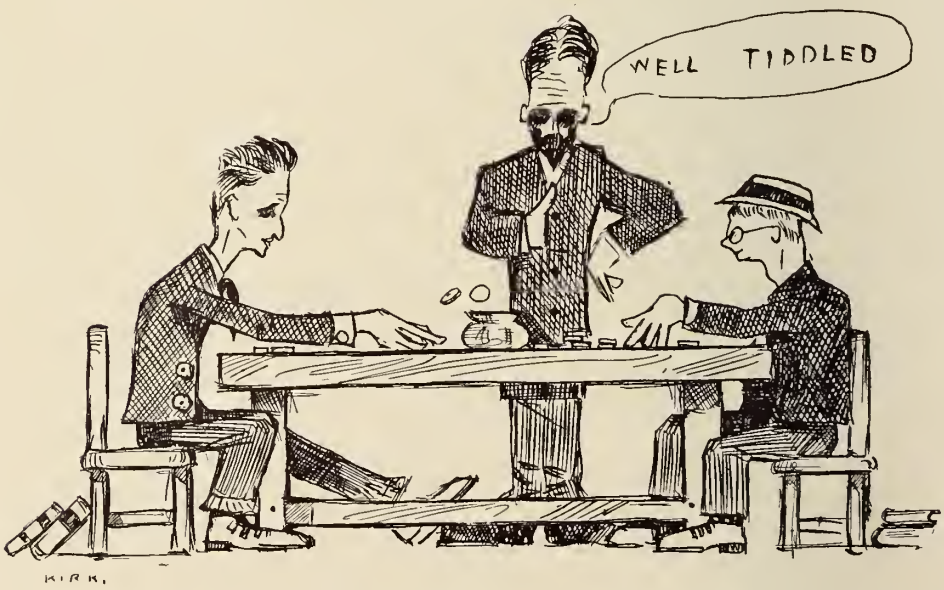
"We hope this holds Lafayette College temporarily, and as soon as the 1909 Melange gets out we'll show it up in great style because the humor won't be up to Mark Twain's standard, the satire equal to Thomas Carlyle's nor the serious phrases worthy of Emerson's pen."

The Tiddledy-Winks Club



Never had Lafayette College been represented by a Tiddledy-wink team. "On gridiron field and track" were 'Varsity L's long-cherished and honored possessions among undergraduates, but Tiddledy-winks was left unnoticed and even scorned by the powers that be in Lafayette's Athletic Association. That Tiddledy-wink material was scarce in Lafayette College is plain from the fact that long and periodic appeals from Dr. Warfield, the institution's president, whose very wishes are cherished as laws by all the boys, failed to bring out candidates for the team or awaken more than a flutter of interest.

Honey was in despair. He would gladly take charge of a Tiddledy-wink squad for the sake of the reinforced triple-ply drag it would give him with the Prex, but he was all tied up with Deutscher Verein and the heavy Dutch he was giving the Seniors. Also, he was not familiar with the technique of the game so was completely disqualified as well as disheartened. But then came Hiprah Hunt.

It was the night of the Freshman reception at the home of our President, when Hiprah received his first description of Kentucky and its scions, and after being taken very carefully and minutely through the blue grass region, then to Princeton's Theological Seminary and across to Oxford where athletics are delightfully formal and select, our Prex patronizingly told Hiprah of the wonderful success he had achieved in Tiddledy-winks and of the three beautiful flannel pen-wipers he had won, and immediately there came in Hiprah a marvelous change: A gleam of interest shone in his eyes, his jaw which had dropped slowly down during the Prexies' thrilling recital returned gradually to place. Even the Prex stopped astonished and Hiprah fairly blurted out:

—"But Dr. Warfield do you spell Tiddledy-winks with a separate 'de' in the center with the hyphens and the single word Tiddle making up the first part, or do you make it just two parts compounded?"

Immediately the Prex perceived the keen insight to the game in Hiprah and here was just the man he had been looking for. Quickly the Prex replied: "Your point is indeed well taken, Mr. Hunt. I see you have more than a passing knowledge of the game and to your interrogation I proudly reply that my Kentucky patriotism leads me to answer that the 'de' I do not use, that being the English method of spelling, for this great game and the American method being the beautifully plain 'Tiddledy-winks' which I prefer, because you know Kentucky is located in America— you may make your own deductions," and the Prex smiled sagely at Hiprah while the latter taking his cue laughed so heartily at the little joke that he choked quite realistically.

That was the beginning. To tell how the Prex showed Hiprah his dearly won flannel pen-wipers on the next day after the safety deposit vaults opened down town would be using too much time, and how in their first game Hiprah came nearly defeating the Prex in Tiddledy-Wink singles would simply be reproducing the sporting page from the next week's Sabbath School Times. Suffice it to say that Hiprah gladly consented to take a squad and train them for any Tiddledy-wink contest that could be landed with other institutions, not even barring such serious opponents as Bryn Mawr or Smith.

* * * * * * * * *

More than a year had passed since Hiprah's conversation with the Prex. Their fondest hopes were realized. Hiprah had charge of the Tiddledy-wink squad and a match game with Harvard had been arranged; even the place was chosen. As both teams wished to play on neutral ground it was decided that the game be played at Riegelsville. But there was still a serious question to be decided. Four men were needed to represent Lafayette and three had qualified while for the fourth place two players still held even places in the trials, and one more game was necessary to decide the better and luckier man who would get the trip to Riegelsville with the team.

Strange to say these two contestants were classmates and even playmates inseparable. They were none other than King Lear and Shafer. Both were generous, both torn 'twixt friendship and duty. Love for their Alma Mater and their high integrity of purpose forbade them giving up the game to the other though both earnestly hoped the other might win. The time for choosing the team was just approaching, the time for the final decisive trial was set, all South College was agog and the tense drawn faces of the two whose fate was to be decided indicated the enormity of the strain under which they worked.

* * * * * * * * *

From the faculty room high up in old South College shone out bright lights. 'Twas mid-April and not a night when the Faculty was wont to have their usual bicker as to whether iron or wooden posts would be better for the tennis court nets, so some of the lighter minded element on their way to the Jewel were nonplussed at the sight of the brilliancy. However, all South College knew what was going on and the room was thronged with bright eager faces which reflected the lights almost equally with the celluloid collars present.

In the center of the room was the regulation table constructed after Prexie's idea, and placed by Pidy's directions so that the magnetic lines of force due to the electric illumination and the magnetic poles of the earth might have an equal influence on the nerves of each player. The Tiddledy-wink cup, which was the very one into which the Prex had tiddled when he won his penwipers, had been loaned to the association by Dr. Warfield. With business-like squint George Miller with vernier calipers adjusted the cup in the proper place and all was in readiness for the entrance of the players. Slow measured steps were heard on the stairs and there entered J. Whitney Colliton, the chosen referee followed by Lear—the King, and Shafer, hand in hand, after whom came Hiprah Hunt their coach.

LEAR KEPT ON TRAINING

"Punkin" Edwards laid down his Greek Bible and carefully examined the approaching party with critical eye, then turning to Hartzell said: "Don't you think Shafer looks under-trained?"

"Yes, he failed to read The Simple Life which Mr. Hunt and Dr. Warfield so earnestly recommended, and it may count against him," agreed Hartzell, whereupon "Punkin" whispered that he had even heard that Shafer had eaten a cream-puff within the week and that such action could not be in any way approved.

Not a word was spoken. The players took their places. J. Whitney at his post recited as the signal to begin play a few lines from Pope's "Essay on Man," which he muddled and nobody could help him out, so play was postponed until a copy of Pope was obtained.

King led off and tiddled his extreme right wink squarely into the cup.

"Well tiddled," ejaculated Hiprah in spite of his usual reserve.

"I object" interposed Sir Hopkins who up to this time had stood half concealed behind Pidy. A copy of Blackstone was brought, but the Prex scorned to use it and made an impromptu speech on "Higher Ideals" until he caught Shafer winking at Lear, and in spite of Shafer's protestation that he was innocent of malice, refused to go on with his speech, and said he could no longer view the game impartially.

The game was resumed. Six winks were tiddled by each man, the first five in each case scoring and even the sixth for Lear. Was it to be a draw? "Shafe" with his most earnest mein took his position displaying great form, the onlookers held themselves tense with expectancy, the wink was tiddled, it struck the cup edge on edge, rolled for a moment then fell outside.

Decision was made, the die was cast, all was over. Slowly and sadly both players arose, stood speechless while "Colly" gave a selection from Shakespeare's "King Lear," thus classically indicating the winner. Out from the room the throng filed quietly, leaving the contestants above. 'Twas thus decided, "King" kept on training while "Shafe" found solace in Fox's Book of Martyrs and Baxter's Saint's Rest.

The Hunyahs

The Hunyahs begin collecting in front of McKeen shortly after one o'clock, the regular time for earnest effort to start—and with almost all members responding to roll-call the alma mater is sung, "Hail, Hail to Teddybear" ———

On the horizon near the library comes Willie Walker Darsie cleaving the atmosphere and towing Billy Evans heavily ballasted by campus "Notes on Track." The boys greet them with cheers and tumult at their great show of spirit. With much uproar and confusion a martial company front is finally formed and Teddybear is stormed in his fortress, Old Pardee, while the stirring marching song is energetically given.

Once in the halls of learning partners are chosen haphazardly by the more vigorous Hunjahs for rough-house indulgences while the others crawl to the settees for a nap. No one shows the slightest intention of entering the class-room although 'tis now twenty minutes past the hour. Finally "Tud" ventures to the door to see the cause for the tardiness of his "studes" and thinking the coast clear even starts into the hall only to be side-swiped and capsized by Greeny who in breaking one of Kotcher's hammer-locks gets the opportunity for offering "Teddybear" his sincerest apologies. Meanwhile the remainder of the "angry mob" desist their activity long enough to sympathetically yell "hard luck" at Greeny and exhort him not to laugh during his apologetic recital. "Tud" then extends an invitation to all to enter the class-room and a miniature cane rush is held at the door. Five minutes later the books are picked up from the floor and nearly every one has found the seat "Teddybear" assigned him at the last recitation.

At this point Mebus enters the room like a whirlwind, complexion cherry-red and great beads of sweat coverng brow and upper lip. Claffon Mayfield is overcome by mirth at the spectacle, calls the attention of the rest of the class to "Poicy," loud expressions of glee follow and Mebus gets even by slapping Greeny vigorously on the "coco." "Tud" looks up with austere mien to quell the riot, sees George F. Walter taking no part in the bad action, spots him for a mark and orders him out of the room. Gawrge waxes indignant, gets caustic and "Tud" reconsiders although all the other boys have thumbs down and encourage T. B. to "heave him out." After the argument Gawrge, being the winner, tenders his compliments to the class in no uncertain terms while great enthusiasm at his show of spirit sets the boys agog.

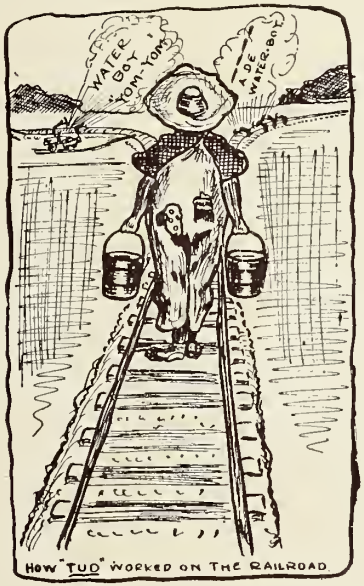
Some one tries to get in at the door from outside, but finds it locked. Freddie Wheeler carefully saw to that before taking his seat. All pretend they want to go to the door but fail to do so while "Tud" wanders back alone and unlocks the portal. Somnambulist Watkins rolls in but nobody cheers; all are used to his late arrival, the cheering would take place if he were on time. One or two inquire as to who awakened him while Sleepy gets mad and says things not in accordance with a denominational institution. By this time Ed. Moore has discovered that his corncob pipe is still lighted and blows smoke through the stem with his mouth at the bowl. All cough vigorously as though the tobacco fumes were most offensive.



HOW "TUD" WORKED ON THE RAILROAD

Davvy suggests "lets go home" and awakens "Tud" to the realization that the class has been present thirty minutes, and no intellectual gymnastics held. He excitedly starts out to assign an enormous "lesson," for next time which no one pays any attention to until Spang asks "What did the angry mob say?" and the windows rattle sympathetically for thirty seconds. "Tud" promises to throw out the whole class which causes great rejoicing and he at once corrects his mistake, and threatens to lecture two hours and wildest consternation follows.

After stopping Bill Darsie and Harry Do—It from matching nickels and ordering Si Riddle to put away his magazine or leave the room "Tud" starts to tell all about air brakes. Chaunce Preston at once gets critical over the drawing "Tud" has smeared over one of the boards, picks it to pieces earnestly while the rest of the class substantiate Chaunce's arguments. "Tud" finally admits that the drawing might not work and playfully tells Chaunce, if he wants a better one to come up and do it himself, which retort brings loud applause.

"How would you get the air into those air-brakes?" asked Sleepy Watkins. "All the brakemen have little bicycle pumps," volunteers Kotcher, to which reply "Tud" pays no attention and Kotch gets hot because his joke is unnoticed. Gawrge F. Walter calls attention to Kotch's anger and starts a laugh.

"Why don't the brakes come off when the train runs backwards?" asks J. T. Paxson while the class cheers lustily and yells "throw him out." J. T. then throws a bluff while Claffon moves around uneasily for a minute or two and wants to know how they get the brakes off when they want to release them. "Monkey-wrench" says Spengler, and somebody presents Spang as "The Boy Machinist or Out at the Ingersoll" while "Tud" quickly writes formulas all over one blackboard. Greeny resents the last rap on the head Mebus gave him, they clinch and after a few minutes' quick action in which two chairs are broken they break away and the class is divided in its choice of the winner. "Tud" turns around in time to see James Fields waking up and inquiring about the racket and runs him out for not paying attention. James waves good-bye at the door and his colleagues lovingly call "Good-bye, James," until he reaches McKeen Hall. "Tud" explains the formulas and then surprised at the tranquillity of the class asks, "Now what good are these formulas?" "No good" answers the class in chorus while "Tud" drops his chalk and in stooping for it raps his head on the blackboard. Dick Johanknecht tries to restore equilibrium and pretend an interest by asking, "What is 'rho' in that formula?"

"That's what comes with shad," answers Chaunce and the class promptly gets enthused over the joke. "Tud" explains "rho" properly after directing a glance supposed to be great scorn at Chaunce and starts out on more computation. His slide rule is brought into play. Conscious of its presence he keeps it concealed from the boys who get active and pleased at once. He writes down the answer and Chaunce delightedly exclaims:

"Oh look how quick he got that," and the class promptly numbers one less. Freddie Wheeler starts up "Afraid to come Home in the Dark" with Spang and Gawrge as supporters while Davvy down in front tries "I'd Like to Meet Your Father." Each stude chooses his favorite song and a marvelous medley follows, whereupon "Tud" having nothing to do for a few minutes looks at his watch, discovers it is time for dismissal and says the magic "class excused" and a fire drill is given with much gusto. Once outside another yell is given and the cares of college are over for another day.

Our Course in Elocution

FRANKIE (looking at his notes)—"Yes, to-day we have elocution. You were to write your own selections but please do not have anything personal or any references to political parties. The secret of elocution is not to put your hands in your pockets. Kindly be brief as I wish to go down to the Pomfret Club and play pinochle. Mr. Bird, you may begin."

BIRD (in his usual diffident manner):

"My lady walks in moonlight glow,
And her sweet eyes such glances throw,
As bathe my soul in ecstacy.
But not for me, but not for me,
Are these love-glances, luscious, free,
And so alone, I make my moan
My Viola, my Viola!"

TROUTFELT (in stage whisper)—"I wonder where Francis is?"

Then follows a spirited discussion between Bill Ross and Bell whether Bird's effusion was something new or something The Touchstone would not print, during which Bell, Brown and a few others declaim unheard.

FRANKIE—"Kindly do not talk so loud. Mr. Fee, you are next."

FEE (in what he imagines is his English accent)—"When I lived in India—my father was consul there, you know—I constantly associated with a Rajah—fine chap—immensely wealthy—awfully fond of me—in fact quite disconsolate when I came to Lafayette—afraid I would lose my fine ideals, you know—" etc., etc., ad infinitum et ad nauseam.

FRANKIE—"That was very instructive, Mr. Fee." Fee with ninety-six inch chest development sits down. Then Robert Conrad Kay gives a spirited address on the arduous duties of a Sock and Buskin manager, incidentally relating how many plays he saw last winter and how much he paid to see them. As the class has frequently heard this tale they slumber peacefully. Ducks Lathrope then arises with a red face.

FROUTIE—Show 'em how to blush, Ducks." Ducks becomes so purple Frankie fears he is going to have a fit and tells him to sit down.

FRANKIE—"Mr. McMeen is next." Class sits up and takes notice. Ben trips gently to the front and with appropriate graceful gestures delivers this dainty ditty.

"And then arose at break of day
The pea-green goat, and out did stray
To find what e're she may.
She little cared what her befell
If only it did turn out well
And not McLaughin with its smell—
Alack-a-day-a-day!

Then wandered she, till on she flew,
She knew not even what she knew,
And only mentioned one or two.
  But goats of pea-green hue, so rare,
  Are never found just here and there,
  And so they sent her home with care–
Oh oui–adieu–adieu."

Frankie faints and the class beats it, debating whether Ben gets an A or goes up.

The Faculty's Hour

Between the dark and the daylight,
  When the night is beginning to lower,
Comes a pause in our week's occupations,
  That is known as the Faculty's Hour.

From a room high up in South College,
  A light gleams out thru the night,
And shadows pass by the windows.
  Ah me! 'Tis a terrible sight!

For our heads may lie in the balance;
The axe falls now and then,
Or a summons may come to meet "Prexie,"
Aloft in his dreadful den.

Our "Prexie" presides o'er the meeting.
His face is austere and stern.
And a gleam of joy lights his features,
As he rattles the sacred urn.

A name falls out and he reads it.
"Let the animal go!" shouts one.
"He has wasted his time and his money,
And his sojourn here is done!"

"But, Joseph dear, we once were boys,
In the misty past you know."
Says a gray-haired man with kindly eyes,
Who goes by the name of "Slow."—

PROVE ALL THINGS.

"Give him another chance, one more.
The lad will reform, I believe."
And the blue eyes gleam with a twinkle gay,
And the lad gets a two weeks' reprieve.

A pond'rous weight slowly rises.
A marvelous sight to behold!
All the profs. now grow drowsy and slumber,
For his tale is the same as of old.—

"More playthings I want for my lectures.
Poor George needs a new suit of clothes.
A fresh stock of jokes I must purchase,
For these cause unmentionable woes.

And gentlemen, listen a moment.
A remarkble shadow I've seen,
Early one morning on Third Street,
A shade of a rope that was green!"

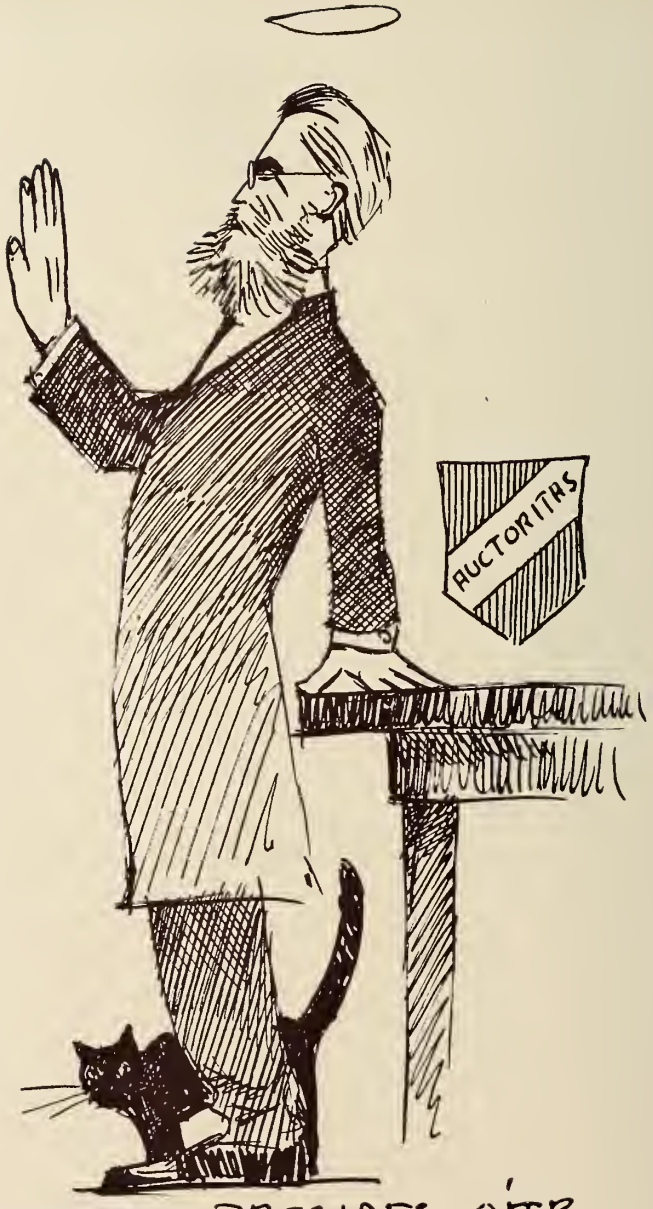
"But—PROVE all things!" pipes a treble.
And "Pidy" sinks to the floor.
Then "Georgie" runs to his master
And weeps o'er the form of Moore.

Now "Prexie" speaks of a bon-fire
That was made of the old tennis fence.
(And some "Pidy" books in the bargain,
That were purchased at great expense.)



PREXIE PRESIDES O'ER
THE MEETING.

The detective bureau is summoned:—
"Teddy" and "Lane" and "Red,"
"The Chief" and "Doc" and "Honey."
(Now listen to what is said).

"The Juniors done it! I see'd 'em!"
Says "Red"—the pride of McKeen.
Poor Tupper collapses completely
And faints in the arms of Green.

"Four poker games on the campus,
Ten boys in the 'States' last night,
They all could walk quite safely,
Tho 'King' Lear was an awful sight!"

But why should we write any longer
Of the things that are said and done,
In that chamber of horrors so dreadful
Where the College and we are run?

They rule us well and we need it,
But we simply ask and implore,
That the one who handles the sacred urn
Will sail for another shore!

Joe and the Jail Bird.

1.44—All quiet.

Physics Room Ballads

(With Extensive sympathies for Rudyard Kipling)

Foreword

I have studied your Watson and Chutes,
And have flunked at the boards with the boys;
When the joke was thin I have tried to grin,
Just to heighten our "Pidy's" joys.

Why we study math'matics I've told,
When Shafer flunked I have cheered,
I've fallen asleep when the talk got deep,
And beautiful air-castles reared.

I've tried to tell of the hours
We've spent under "Pidy's" eye,
But if I've gone wrong on any song,
Please let critical impulse die.

The Physics Quiz

"What are the Juniors groanin' for?" asked a Freshman stoppin' dead;
"A Physics quiz," a Physics quiz," the knowing Sophomore said.
"What makes you look so glum at that?" yelled a Freshman on ahead.
"I'm comin' into that next year," the gloomy Sophomore said.

For a quiz is on the morrow and the Juniors all are sad,
There'll be a lot of flunkin'—even Gawrge is lookin' mad.
And there'll be a mess of papers send their owners to the bad
Just as sure as there's a quiz on in the mornin.'

"What makes Shafer look so happy?" asked a Freshman bitin' lead.
"He's got a drag, he's got a drag," the wise young Sophomore said.
"And why is Schoen a grinnin'?" cried the Freshman, growing red,
"It's simply A, B, C's to him" again the Sophomore said.

For a quiz is on the morrow, "Pidy's" lookin' through his book,
To get up a bunch of questions that'll give the boys the hook.
And there'll be some sad old flounderin' up there in that Physics nook,
When the time comes for that quizzin' in the mornin.'

"Does a back seat count for somethin'?" asked a Freshman on ahead.
"There's no use cribbin' Pidy," the artful Sophomore said.
"Why not?" the Freshman queried with his jaw ahangin' dead.
"Make up your crib from Mother Goose," the caustic Sophomore said.

For a quiz is on the morrow and the Juniors all are blue,
Some 'll try their best to study; some'll go off on a stew.
For they all know, what'll happen just as sure as 'two and two',
When they sail into that quiz room in the mornin'.

"What's that loud noise I hear up there?" another Freshman said.
"It's Mills a-workin' up a drag," the listening Sophomore said.
"And what is that?" the Frosh replied a-scratchin' of his head,
"He's laughin' loud at some stale joke," the brutal Sophomore said.

For a quiz is on the morrow and the boys are on the bluff,
All "Pidy's" jokes now bring the laugh as though they were the stuff.
The sleepy ones have all awoke and now look wise enough.
For there's goin' to be a quiz on in the mornin'.

Physics

I wanders into "Pidy's" room as happy as can be.
I thinks I has my stuff up cold, there ain't no flies on me.
Till "Pidy" gets me on my pins and asks me just to try
To name the last six presidents and to myself thinks I,

Oh it's Physics this, and Physics that, and Physics every day;
And I'm wonderin' how did history get mixed up in this play.
Yes how did history get in here, and how long will it stay?
I've looped the gap, I'm down and out,—another zero day.

I studies almost half the night on electricitee,
I think I'll ding him good and hard, just let him call on me.
He gets me up and says to me, "Where is Keokee Falls?"
I hands him back a guileless look and in my chair I falls.

Oh its Physics this, and Physics that, and Physics on the side.
But who let in Geography's what I can't now decide,
What I can't now decide, classmates, etc.

I takes my book and makes a crib a-thinkin' for to cheat,
I can't flunk now, I'm sure to win, I've got it all down neat.
Then "Pidy" picks me from the bunch and tells me just to say
(To the amusement of the boys) "The date of Arbor Day?"

Oh its Physics this, and Physics that, and Physics now and then,
But if I'd just brought the calendar I'd surely made a ten.
I'd surely made a ten, classmates, etc.

I read the life of Faraday, and Humphry Davy's too.
I thought here's where I work a drag in the next day or two.
But the boys they had an awful time a-tryin' not to cheer,
When "Pidy" asked me later on th' ingredients of beer.

Oh its Physics this, and Physics that, and Physics put to flight.
You can get up dandy gamblin' games on questions overnight.
On questions overnight, classmates, etc.

You can talk of greasin' good and hard an' valedictories,
Phi Beta Kappa ain't for me, seein' how "Pidy" sees.
But I'd like to know by choice or chance or any other schemes,
How "Pidy" daily figures out his new and novel themes.

For its Physics this, and Physics that, an' Physics butt outside,
For whenever "Pidy" calls on me I takes an airship ride.
But I just sort of like the game, it's always somethin' new,
And I think that I'll be sort of glum when "Pidy" puts me through.

Gawrge

You may talk of feelin' cheer
When you're safely out o'here,
An' you're apt to grin about our "Pidy's" junket.
But when you've got to Porter
You can look back as you'd orter,
And be glad you didn't have the luck to flunk it.

Now in "Pidy's" Physics Room,
Where I used to meet my doom
A flunkin' and a loopin' of the loop,
Of all that crew of tutes,
Wot taught Physics out of Chutes
The best was "Pidy's" right-hand only Supe.

It was "Gawrge, Gawrge, Gawrge,"
Don't you dare to let that mercury at large.
Hi! where's them Leyden Jars,
Don't forget them magnet bars,
You modest, unassuming, wise old Gawrge.

The expression wot 'e wore
Gave nothin' out before,
And reminded one of nothin' else behind.
For some spec's and a moustache,
And a twisted down eye-lash
Leave no further lineaments to be defined.

When the Physics class all lay,
In a sleepy sad-eyed way,
A'wonderin' where misfortune next would fall,
We'd all look up with glee
When 2 Pi R 'ud slap his knee
And for some toy-store product loudly bawl.

It was Gawrge, Gawrge, Gawrge
Don't stand there like the victim of a gorge,
Go and get a singin' top,
With a rat trap and a mop,
For experiments will now be pulled off, Gawrge.

He would up and jump and run
Like a sprinter at the gun,
When our "Pidy" yelled for electricitee,
And would work switch after switch
Till our eyes were all a'twitch,
With the jerky arc-lamp's dazzling brilliancy.

To make sure we were awake,
"Pidy" a ball 'ud take,
And 'ud heave the bloomin' thing acrost the room,
While mild Gawrge his post would leave,
And chase after to retrieve,
With the ball a'rollin' down the aisle a-boom.

It was Gawrge, Gawrge, Gawrge
"Hurry up and get those figgers on the boards,
When you've finished rub 'em out!
Now attention, "right-about!"
Hi, go and get more apparatus, Gawrge!!"

I shan't forget that day
When "Pidy" threw away
Just about a quart of carbon bisulphide.
Smeared around about the floor
And a'smellin' like a morgue,
With the best of us a sniffin' high and wide.

Though old "Pidy" chuckled wise,
Gawrge, he seemed to sympathize,
And he hustled all the windows to the top.
While no one was overcome
Yet the smell was mighty bum.
Our lives we mebbe owe to Gawrge's hop.

It was "Gawrge, Gawrge, Gawrge,"
Ere's a chance to pick up somethin' from the floor
Mebbe it's our "Pidy's" book,
But don't ever stop to look,
Just duck and take your chances, gentle Gawrge.

He never seemed to mind
Though the job might seem unkind,
And of profanity he didn't know the use.
No one ever saw him scowl,
No matter how his Lord did howl,
An' he never conjured up a weak excuse.

So some day when we return
From the wide world's busy churn,
With Experience's marks upon us grown,
We'll mebbe know it ain't no fun
To be the man behind the gun,
And to Gawrge we'll raise a monument of stone.

And make it "Gawrge, Gawrge, Gawrge,"
Here's a tribute to your honest effort, Gawrge.
Though they might humiliate you,
There ain't none should underrate you,
For we knew you had the gray stuff, brainy Gawrge.

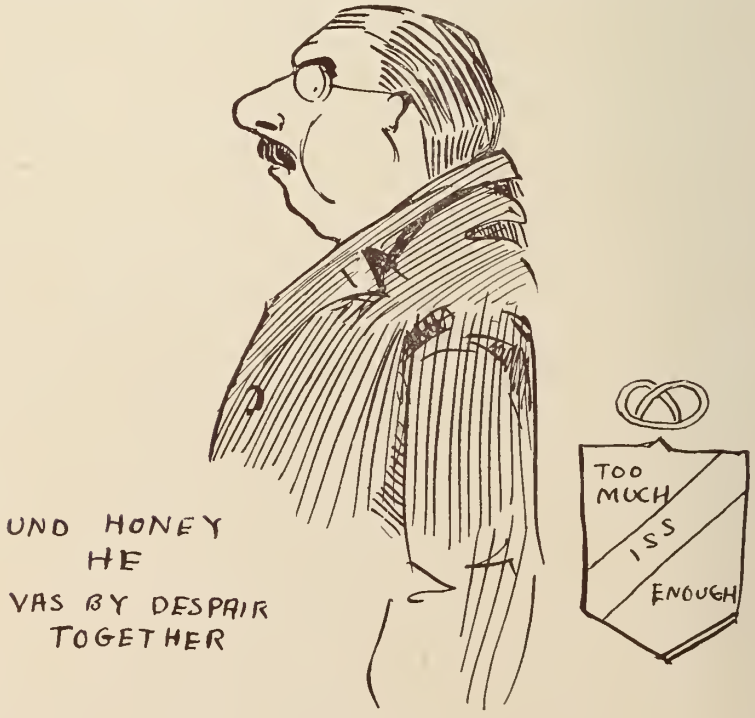
Old Pardee

By that old three-cornered counter over in the Physics Room,
There's our learned Doctor settin' and he's plunged in deepest gloom,
For the chairs are now all vacant, 1909 ne'er more will be
Takin' part in wild discussion in that end of Old Pardee.
Eastern end of Old Pardee,
Where our Physics used to be,
Where we tried to look sagacious over Nature's mystery.
Oh, that room in Old Pardee,
Filled with lots of memory,
How we flunked, and grinned, and grumbled, over there in Old Pardee!

All around the room was blackboards wot would tell if they could talk,
Lots more of a different nature than they ever told in chalk,
And those rows of spacious arm-chairs rising upward tier on tier,
All could give their separate stories which they've gathered year by year.
Tales of hope and tales of fear,
Yarns most mighty good to hear.
If you're fond of tales of humor from the serious atmosphere,
Over there in Old Pardee.

When the clock 'ud toll eleven, we would all come filin' in,
Lookin' wistful at the blackboards, holdin' back an' figurin'
Whether we had better hustle and take chances at our seats,
Or go bravely to the spaces and begin a doin' feats,
With the chalk a doin' feats,
Makin' circles, lines, and sheets,
Drawin' pendulums a-tickin' with the most outlandish beats,
Over there in Old Pardee.

But that's all gone and over—
"Pidy" ain't no more for me.
Winter term's examinations took me out of Old Pardee,
And I'm seein' now much clearer wot's been said in years before,



That your memories aren't bitter if you don't flunk "Pidy's" lore.
But you miss that useful store
What you used to think a bore,
Of all kinds of information what was dished out at your door,
Over there in Old Pardee.

I am sick of writin' term themes 'bout a lot of dead old guys,
Like old Plato, Aristotle and their philosophic lives.
Tho' I grease up on construction and dope out a twisted phrase,
From a highly complicated bit of worn-out Latin maze,
Where's the pleasure, wot's the praise,
How will that my culture raise?
I would rather study "Pidy's" topics of the present days,
Over there in Old Pardee.

If the boys were now just startin',—Sophomores in that Physics Room,
And the calendar was twisted back a year within its doom,
I'd be just as well contented for I'd kind of like to be—
Listenin' to those "Pidy" lectures over there in Old Pardee,
Eastern end of Old Pardee,
Where our Physics used to be,
Some of us a tryin' vainly for to get more than a D.
Over there in Old Pardee,
Some a sleepin' peacefully,
But the whole thing gone forever's now a pleasant memory.

(The following self-explanatory effusions have been furnished by a Vassar Junior to the Board of Editors who have charitably changed their names)

I.

From Mr. Willy Mushup, Freshman at Lafayette, to Miss Nancy Flight, Junior at Vassar, after a summer at the shore with said body?

63 ———— Hall, Oct. 10, 1907.

Dear Nan:

It seems a long time since we had our last dip down at the shore together and I suppose you have about forgotten Willy. Say, didn't we have a good old time though?

I certainly wouldn't have missed writing you last week if I could have helped it, but, honestly, I didn't have time. You see, being a Freshman means that you have a lot of time that's not your own. Last week we made quite a few attempts to get our picture taken on the East steps of Pardee and finally succeeded. There was a big fight, but we licked the Sophomores in great shape. I had quite a scrap with a big "Soph." As soon as we got on the steps the "Sophs" got after us and this big fellow grabbed me and hauled me out of our crowd; I held on and the first thing I knew we went over the terrace and down. I didn't know he was mad, but when he hit me I know I got mad. A lot of fellows who were standing around kept yelling, "Clean him, 'Frosh,'" "Smear him over the pavement," "Push him one in the eye," "Wang him one," and lots more that I can't write, besides some that I can't remember. Well,

I cleaned and smeared, and pushed and wanged, until they pulled us apart. Well, you should have seen him. Of course, I got a little bruised up—got a tooth loosened and one ear torn a little, but that's all. The "Sophs" are pretty easy to let us get the picture.

To come back to your letter—do you really mean I may keep that handkerchief? And will you take my Prep. School pin and wear it? There are going to be some dances after while and I want you to come down. I would just like to show some of those friends of yours that a Freshman can make good. Write as soon as you get this, please, and don't forget meanwhile

Yours truly,

WILL.

II.

From Mr. Percy Pegtop, Sophomore at Laf. to Miss Nancy Flight, Junior at Vassar, whom he has known for a whole year.

54 ——— HALL, Oct. 12, 1907.

DEAR NAN:

Yes, I know I am late this time, but—

Well, you must remember that the first few weeks Sophomores are the busiest of the course and don't think that I wish to hear from you a bit less. We have been particularly busy whipping the "Frosh" into shape enough to make them at least passable College men. They had the nerve three times last week to attempt to get their class picture, but they were "up agin" it when they bucked 1910. We "put the cleaner" on them for fair the last attempt they made. They didn't get a camera within ten miles of the steps that time. We just shoved them all over the lot and told them just where to get off. I had a funny experience in that scrap. Big mountain of a Freshman jumped me and we went over the bank together. Nothing but a kid though and I felt sorry for the poor cotton-top, because I just had to hit him. They carried him away. But as it happened, some Junior got mixed up with it and kicked me in the face—mucker trick—blackening my eye, hut that doesn't amount to much. One of my ribs feels a little sore, too, but the doctor said it wasn't really broken.

Have had a pretty good time so far this year as some brand new skirts are in town and altogether I know a pretty flossy bunch of fluffy ruffles now—don't have to go to Allentown.

I'm not trying to be tough, but you are a good sport, Nan, and you know a College man has got to be a good fellow. And we are such old friends that I feel that I can tell you anything. Of course, this seems as though I am wandering a good deal, but I can't help it—You are a brick and I'm for you—and if I thought you felt the same about me I would sign my name to this quite differently from just

Yours as ever,

PERCY.

III.

Algernon Blasé, Junior at Laf., to Miss Nancy Flight, a Junior at Vassar, whose intimate acquaintance he has claimed for two years:

78 ——— HALL, Oct. 17, 1907.

DEAR NAN:

Your letter did make me ashamed for not having written before, but you can't kick much now because—well, to be frank, Nan, you have kept me pretty well on the ragged edge now for two years. Of course, that hasn't much connection with your remarks about my not writing, but—hang it all, I seem to get in wrong all the time. The main excitements since College opened have been the class scraps between the Freshmen and Sophomores. The last scrap was a peach, the "Frosh" had their picture taken and incidentally made soap out of the Sophomore class. One funny thing I saw was young Pegtop, the fellow that wrote the crazy letters last year (by the way, is he still writing?), mixing it up with a little Freshman. They rolled down the bank and the Freshman was rapidly making Pegtop's physiognomy look like a short cut across a vacant lot when we upperclassmen stopped them. The "Frosh" were game and got several pictures, in addition to putting the cleaner to the "Sophs." Write when you can and I sure will try and do better and maybe by next time will have nerve enough to—at least more nerve than I have now. Sincerely,

ALGERNON.

IV.

Mr. Waldo Graves, Senior at Laf., to Miss Nancy Flight, whom he has known since Christmas, Freshman year, when his sister brought her home from school on a visit:

36 ——— HALL, Oct. 18, 1907.

DEAR GIRL:

We are well in the rut again now and the time can't pass too quickly. Think of it, girl, only a year now and—

You know it nearly broke me to get that last effusion to you when I got on that strain, so I must keep shy.

The main "doings" since I wrote have been the class scraps between the Freshmen and Sophomores. Honestly, girl, I can't realize I was in that sort of thing just a few years ago. Saw that big Freshman, Harrison, you wrote me of, putting it all over a little Sophomore in the picture scrap a few days ago and had to send both of them to their rooms. It seems they got to mixing it up together and the Juniors kept sicing them on until the "Soph" was about down and out. The Freshmen did not get their picture and I am rather glad because they are pretty fresh now, though aside from that I don't care one way or the other.

Speaking of Harrison reminds me of a thing I have been thinking of for some time. I don't want to appear jealous or foolish, but don't you think it just as well to let up on the "other" fellows. Now, don't misunderstand me, please. I merely mention it because the "Frosh" was in my room the other day and in a burst of confidence (not knowing that I more than knew you) told me pretty nearly the whole sad story—his story. So have a good time and in your own way, but go easy on the "rest." . Yours absolutely,

WALDO.

Sympathy

WHEREAS, It hath pleased Keeley, in his superior wisdom, to release 1000 ducats from our Pidy's jeans for Keeley Motor Stock at 3c. per, we, the undersigned, inscribe this to show our deepest sympathy for the loss of same spondoolix.

VAN WICKLE MEMORIAL LIBRARY

LAFAYETTE COLLEGE was founded in 1832, and the 75th Anniversary was celebrated in June, 1907, with brilliant success. A fund of half a million dollars was subscribed by the alumni and friends of the College for the increase of its endowment and the extension of its courses of study. The most notable feature of the celebration was the gathering of distinguished alumni, men of usefulness and success in every department of public life, whose lives and services are the best evidence of the value of the College to the country.

PARDEE HALL

The College now maintains three general courses known as the Classical, Latin Scientific and General Scientific courses, and four professional courses, Civil, Mining and Electrical Engineering and Chemistry. All of these courses are well-equipped, the faculty is able and experienced, and the ability of the graduates to meet the demands of practical life widely recognized.

The beauty of the grounds and buildings can be appreciated only by those who have seen them. The natural advantages of the location for beauty and healthfulness are very great, and they have been skilfully improved by art. The student life is sound and wholesome, and physical training is made an important factor in the College life.

Full details, with illustrated handbook and catalogue, may be obtained from the Registrar.

LAUBACH'S

THE DAYLIGHT DEPARTMENT STORE

NEARLY a half century has elapsed since this store was opened on a part of its present site. At that time it was looked on as a good sized business place and received a liberal share of public patronage. To-day it is many times as large as it was in 1860 and is still growing. It is a monument to the principle of honest dealing between patron and merchant, the principle that is yet supreme.

It is a great sight to look through this big store, filled with many kinds of merchandise, such as

Ready-to Wear Apparel for Women and Children, Furnishings for Men, Dry Goods, Carpets, Draperies, China, and so on

Many who cannot arrange to come to the store send their orders by mail, others telephone. You can always get what you want here and you may exchange any purchase that may prove unsatisfactory.
